It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

To the Honorable, the Legislature:

You are again assembled after a lapse of two years of general prosperity vouchsafed to the people of the state by a benign and gracious Providence, and I congratulate you upon the many hopeful signs of a continuation for the future. New discoveries have been made and new fields of industry and employment are being opened, and the prospects that the resources of the state will be greatly developed during the coming year, are gratifying in the extreme. While thus congratulating you upon our material progress, it is with deep regret that I am compelled to report, that during the past year the peace of our state has, in a few instances, been interrupted by strikes and riots of greater magnitude, of more violence, and farther reaching in their consequences, than ever before. In this connection, you are reminded that it will be your duty, as legislators, to look carefully into the causes of these troubles, and wherein our laws for the prevention of wrong-doing, or the punishment of wrong-doers, are found to be defective, it will be your duty to perfect them by such new legislation as recent experience and reasonable anticipations for the future may indicate to be required. While your own intelligence, aided by your investigations and discussions, will, I have no doubt, lead you to a satisfactory solution of all the problems involved in this subject, yet I may be indulged in a few suggestions, which I hope will not be found either impertinent or unwarranted.

The discussion of the labor and capital question has become so extensive, has taken such wide range, and is being participated in by so many people, representing such a diversity of views and interests, that it is not strange, if, at this stage of the discussion, there is more confusion than clearness of thought upon it. To eliminate from all this confusion and controversy what is essential, concrete and practicable, and in accord with those principles of justice upon which all good government is founded, and embody it in effective law, is no light nor trivial task.

It seems to me that a very important—I might say, vital—fact in this great agitation has so far been almost lost sight of, namely: that a large majority of the people of every city and every state where the labor troubles have existed, and an overwhelming majority of the whole people, are not directly parties to the controversy at all. The contention is between employes and employers, and both classes combined are but a minority fraction of the whole people, whose peace and interests are interrupted and their rights violated by these unseemly and unnecessary disturbances. It is the right and duty of the people—that is, of the great majority —to step in and say not only “let us have peace,” but “we will have peace,” and through the law and lawfully constituted authorities to see to it that we do have peace, and that disturbers are promptly and properly punished.

In a few communities, comparatively, there are large bodies of workmen, or laborers, who voluntarily choose to work for others, for wages. These, by general usage, are called “workingmen.” But they are not the only workingmen — not the only laborers in the country. The great majority of our people are workers, with hands or brain, or both, and to all such belongs equally the proud title of laborer. But farther, a majority of the whole number who do manual productive labor, employ themselves, plan for themselves, work for themselves, and take the whole product of their labor to themselves, and find a market for their surplus, when and as they can. This great independent, self-reliant majority is the bone and sinew, the pride and glory of good citizenship. Among them there are no strikes or riots, no interference with the opportunities, liberties and rights of others. That their rights and their interests should be jeopardized by the restless contentions of a small minority who ridiculously assume that they are the only laborers of the country, is a wrong too manifest to be much longer endured. If the parties to these ever-recurring disturbances cannot find a way of amicably settling their disputes, they must be made to submit to such legal arbitration as will at least protect the peace and dignity of a civilized commonwealth.

In indicating that some additional legislation may be required touching the rights of laborers of all classes, and their mutual relations to each other, only the most prominent fundamental principles of natural liberty and popular government need be alluded to.

It has already been assumed that where a person employs himself and works on his own premises, and on his own material, with his own tools, the product of his labor is all his own, to do with as he sees fit. That he must be protected in the full enjoyment of all the fruit of his judgment, labor and skill, it does not require argument to convince us. It is self-evident. But where one person engages to work for another, on another's premises and material, and with another's tools or machinery, it is equally clear that the product belongs to the employer; the workman's claim ends with the receipt of his stipulated wages. The state's duty and province in such cases is simply to maintain individual rights and enforce the fulfillment of contracts. Everyone's right to work for himself, or for anyone else, on such terms as he may choose to make, must be maintained at all hazards. He who interferes with this principle, tramples upon the most sacred of human rights and upon a consecrated principle of American liberty.

Government should not be—indeed, cannot afford to be—indifferent to the welfare of any class of citizens; and it is a special duty to protect the poor and weak against any possible aggressions of the rich and strong. To this end, all the rights and interests of workingmen of the wage classes should be jealously guarded against injustice or oppression at the hands of their employers. Corporations, created by authority of the state, that in the nature of their business must be large employers of labor, or that from the nature of their business and their charges for service may largely affect the value of the product of labor generally to the producer, must be held to a strict and just accountability, and be subject always to the control and regulation of the state.

With those agrarian and socialistic theories of fanciful society that deny the right of private property, or of each individual to full protection in the enjoyment and control of all his lawful earnings, whether obtained by his own labor or by contract, we can have no sympathy. They are as un-American as monarchy, and as treasonable as secession. They contemplate the destruction of both justice and liberty, and would accomplish the destruction of both if their application to existing society were seriously attempted. We are not prepared, as American citizens, to even consider a change in our form of government. Republican institutions and individual liberty go hand in hand, and must be and will be loyally maintained.

FINANCES.

The finances of the state are in a satisfactory condition. No tax has been levied upon the counties for the past three years for defraying the expenses of the state government. In the previous two years a tax was levied and collected from the several counties amounting to $609,664.43, for state purposes. Notwithstanding the large appropriations made by the last legislature, amounting to about $600,000, all of which came out of the general fund, there remained a balance in that fund, at the close of the biennial period, September 30, 1886, as shown by the report of the secretary of state, of $485,689.85. These appropriations and the expenses of the state government were paid without levying a tax upon the counties. The report of the secretary of state furnishes a detailed statement of the receipts and disbursements of the several funds and the cost of maintaining the state government. Unless the legislature shall make additional appropriations, above the ordinary expenses of the legislative, judicial and executive departments, no necessity will exist for providing for any tax levy for the next two years.

TRUST FUNDS.

The productive school fund, on the 30th day of September, 1886, amounted to $2,978,118.41, and there was to the credit of the fund, in the treasury, on that day, $37,291.06. The school fund income for the biennial period was $885,490.82, including the one mill tax, amounting to $488,139.61, and was apportioned to the several counties upon the number of children of school age.

The productive university fund, bearing interest, on the 30th day of September, 1886, amounted to $190,998.35, and the balance on hand to the credit of the fund, on that day, was $37,552.13. The university fund income, for the biennial period, amounted to $214,020.81.

The agricultural college fund, bearing interest, on the 30th day of September, 1886, was $258,597.74, and the balance on hand in the treasury was $38,753.01. The agricultural college fund income was $32,990.91 for the two years.

The productive normal school fund, on the 30th day of September, 1886, amounted to $1,398,740.48, and the balance in the treasury on the same day was $8,190.44. The total normal school fund income for the two years was $200,174.44, all of which was passed to the treasury of the normal school board.

The receipts of the drainage fund for the biennial period were $90,450.99, and the balance to the credit of that fund September 30, 1886, was $65,288.99. There was apportioned to counties during this period $72,050.56, as provided by law. Under the act of 1885, providing for the appointment of an agent to expedite the settlement of claims against the general government under the swamp land grant, I appointed George W. Burchard, and he has procured patents to the state for about twenty thousand acres of land, and cash amounting to $368.90. A bill is now before congress which, should it become a law, will give the state about $200,000 additional.

The St. Croix and Lake Superior Railroad trespass fund has been about all closed up and paid over to the beneficiaries entitled thereto, under the legislation heretofore enacted. There remains, at the present time, in the fund, as the same stands upon the books of the secretary of state, the sum of $2,067.46. All of this sum has been retained for trespass that has been committed upon lands claimed by the state as swamp.

The disbursements from the governor's contingent fund to December 31, 1886, were $2,079.20, and the balance to the credit of the fund on that day on $3,656.21. I recommend the usual appropriation of $2,000 per year.

ACCOUNT WITH THE GENERAL GOVERNMENT.

I have the pleasure of reporting to the legislature that all of the account known as the war tax levied against the state of Wisconsin, amounting to $519,688.67, has been paid, and that the United States owes, upon the settlement, to the state of Wisconsin, $8,409.43, and some of the old claims are still pending upon which it is hoped to receive additional allowances. When I assumed the duties of executive, there was $207,685.16 standing against the state. This amount has been paid by credits which were allowed the state upon the readjustment of our claims against the general government for war purposes, for swamp land indemnity, and for five per centum of the sales of public lands prior to June 30th, 1882.

The whole amount of the war tax, in my judgment, should be refunded to the several states. A measure is now pending before congress to reimburse the several states by repaying such as have paid, and crediting such as have not paid. If this should pass, Wisconsin will receive $519,688.67, out which the school and swamp land funds could be reimbursed for the amounts diverted from those funds, and the balance paid into the general fund. I would recommend that the legislature memorialize congress to pass this measure.

I have also collected the five per centum on the sales of public lands for 1883, amounting to $24,206.21, and on account of swamp land indemnity $363.90, all of which has been paid into the state treasury. I expect to be able to collect from these sources for the years 1884, 1885 and 1886, $100,000 more.

CHARITABLE AND PENAL INSTITUTIONS.

The report of the state board of supervision presents a very full and satisfactory showing regarding the management of the state institutions under its care. The total amount expended by the board during the biennial term ending September 30, 1886, was $735,008.99. Of the amount appropriated two years ago for the maintenance and support of the six charitable and penal institutions, $58,000 has been unexpended, and will be returned into the treasury. During the two years ending last September, the total number of persons cared for in all the state institutions was 4,076, against 3,721 for the previous biennial term. Although there has been an increase of 355 in the number of persons cared for, the current expenses for the biennial term ending September 30, 1886, were $12,313.37 less than for the corresponding term ending September 30, 1884. While there has been an average decrease in the per capita cost of managing the institutions, the weekly average for 1886 being $3.19, the lowest ever reached, there has been no curtailment, but rather an enlargement of the amount of necessary supplies furnished.

The State Hospital for the Insane, for 1885, cost $94,547, and for 1886, $94,206, the weekly per capita cost falling off from $3.53 in 1885, to $3.46 in 1886. The appropriation asked for by the board for the next two years is $114,054.70 over and above $41,872 per year, which will be received from the counties, and the estimated surplus of $20,000 from the last appropriation.

The Northern Hospital for the Insane cost for its maintenance in 1885, $121,536.58, and for 1886, $106,502.85; decreasing the weekly per capita cost from $3.73 in 1885, to $3.22 in 1886. The board of supervision estimates that the appropriation needed for this institution for 1887 and 1888 will be $130,288, besides the estimated surplus of $17,000 from the appropriation two years ago, and $49,900, which will be received each year from the counties.

The School for the Deaf has a surplus of $5,000 from the last appropriation, and the board estimates that $80,000 will be required to support the school for the coming two years. The expenses for 1885 were $37,585.39, and for 1886 $39,043.07. The population has decreased from 205 in 1885, to 195 in 1886, the increase in cost being chargeable to extra improvements about the buildings by renewals, and by making the corps of teachers stronger than ever, for the purpose of meeting the demand for more thorough instruction in the oral department.

The School for the Blind cost the state $19,434.80 in 1885, and $17,484.36 in 1886. The average attendance in 1885 was 62, and in 1886 it had increased to only 66. The weekly cost per capita fell off from $6.03 in 1885, to $5.09 in 1886. It will be seen that the per capita cost is much greater than in any other of the charitable institutions, owing to the fact that the attendance is usually small, and also because the care and instruction of the blind are more expensive than for any other class of pupils. The board asks for an appropriation of $44,250 for the biennial term, which will enable it to make such needed repairs as are necessary to keep the buildings in good condition.

The Industrial School for Boys incurred an expense of $45,613.27 for 1885, and $41,947.44 for 1886, the weekly per capita cost falling off from $3.00 in 1885, to $2.69 for last year. The annual cost of the shops, for material and labor, is estimated as $45,600, but the sales therefrom will annually meet this expenditure, so that the total appropriation recommended by the board for current expenses for the next two years, is $74,473, in addition to $19,000 which will be received from counties.

The state prison had 443 inmates in 1885, and 456 in 1886. The total expense of the prison for 1885 was $54,944.03, and for 1886, $62,163.40, the increase being caused by substantial improvements and the establishment of a hospital. The receipts from convict labor were $49,386.57 in 1885, and $50,507.47 in 1886, so that the net cost of the prison to the state for the past two years, was only $17,213.39.

The contract for the labor of the convicts of the state prison, under the system adopted some years ago, will expire with the year 1887. Under this contract the state furnishes the labor of the convicts by the hour, and retains the management and feeding of the prisoners. Should the legislature determine to abolish the system now in use, some method should be provided for the employment of the inmates. It would be disastrous to the prisoners, as well as the state, to undertake to maintain them in idleness. They should work. They should assist certainly in paying the expenses of their keeping. As a reformatory measure, also, they should be employed. "Each should produce according to his ability, and receive according to his needs." As near as practicable, they should be so employed that their labor or products would not come into competition with free labor.

The cost of maintaining the prison during the continuance of the present contract for the labor will be about $60,500, of which $49,000 will be received from convict labor, making the appropriation asked for by the board $11,500 for 1887.

Within the next two years the prison will be filled to its utmost capacity, and it would be wisdom on the part of your honorable body to take this question under consideration; and, if it shall be thought best to establish another prison, to consider the suggestion of the prison warden and the recommendation of the board, that the new prison be set apart for the younger convicts committed for the first offense, with the hope that such a prison would present the best conditions for reformatory work, as the mixing of criminals of all ages and degrees of crime is not calculated to work reform among those who most need the wholesome influence of a purely reformatory institution.

The State Public School for Dependent and Neglected Children was established by authority of chapter 377, laws of 1885, and was located at Sparta. Three buildings were erected under the direction of the State Board of Supervision, and so far the location and improvements have cost $29,367. The board reports that the indications are that within a few months the school buildings will be filled to their utmost capacity.

COUNTY ASYLUMS.

There are now organized, under the county system, fifteen county asylums, and these seem to be doing a good work in a satisfactory manner. The danger of this system is the liability that an anxiety on the part of local managers and superintendents to make an economical showing to their counties will cause these institutions to revert to a pauper system. This danger is now obviated by the rigid state supervision maintained by the State Board of Charities and Reforms. The power of this board is made potent over the several institutions, by requiring them to have the approval of the board as to the sufficiency of their buildings and the methods of their management, before they are entitled to the state aid of $1.50 per capita per week. The county asylums now completed have a capacity for the care of 1,220 chronic insane, being sufficient to relieve the overcrowded condition of the state hospitals, and provide for the care of the few insane remaining in jails and poorhouses. The total cost for current expenses in these asylums has been, for the past year, $1.71 per capita per week, being a cost to the counties of but 21 cents per capita per week, above the state appropriations.

The Milwaukee County Asylum, which receives both acute and chronic insane, has an unconditional state appropriation of $2.75 per capita per week.

STATE BOARD OF HEALTH.

The State Board of Health have found the state free from any dangerous epidemics or wide-spread contagions, and have observed a marked improvement in the sanitary conditions. Asiatic Cholera, which, it was feared, would reach our midst, and against which the legislature, at its last session, so generously guarded by providing a contingent appropriation, has fortunately not appeared upon this continent. The board, however, do not consider the possibility of all danger as passed, and have asked that the contingent appropriation be continued another term.

IMMIGRATION.

The disbursements of the State Board of Immigration, for the year 1885, were $3,138.32, and for 1886 were $2,628.19. The labors of the board have been confined principally to aiding and advising immigrants arriving; and furnishing information to those intending to immigrate. The number of persons from abroad seeking homes and employment within our borders has been less than in previous years, and they have been of a much better class, with fewer needy ones among them.

FISHERIES.

The disbursements of the Commissioners of Fisheries, for 1885, were $12,294.99, and for 1886, $11,032.33, and there is remaining on hand a balance of $1,274.90. New buildings have been erected, and many substantial and needed improvements made. The distribution of fish fry to the different localities of the state, the past year, was the largest of any since the institution has been in existence. The commissioners, in their biennial report, recommend that the appropriation of $12,000 per annum be made permanent. They also make recommendations in relation to the protection of fish, to which I invite your attention.

Pursuant to the requirements of chapter 455, laws of 1885, I appointed three fish wardens. This law contained provisions for protecting the fish supply in Lake Superior, Lake Michigan and Green Bay.

BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS.

In the re-organization of this bureau, in 1885, the offices of deputy commissioner, factory inspector, and a clerk were added. The expenses of the bureau, up to the close of the biennial period, were $12,410.85, exclusive of printing. The report of the commissioner contains the laws enacted in the interest of labor, a history of the recent strikes and industrial disturbances, including the eight-hour movement in Wisconsin, and a large amount of valuable information on labor subjects generally, together with statistical information relating to the trades and to manufacturing.

NEW ORLEANS EXPOSITION.

The commissioner appointed to represent the state of Wisconsin at the New Orleans exposition in 1884 has made his final report, and out of the appropriation made by the legislature to defray the expenses of the Wisconsin exhibit, he has returned to the treasury the sum of $2,043.73. The law making this appropriation made no provision for any compensation for the commissioner, providing for expenses only, and should it seem proper to compensate him for his services, the legislature should make the necessary provision therefor. The exhibit made by the state was a most creditable one, and although made under adverse circumstances, the fact that Wisconsin secured the highest number of awards, shows that Mr. Holton performed his duties with sagacity and untiring efforts, and that he thoroughly appreciated the important interests of the state.

EDUCATION.

The high standing the state of Wisconsin now has in all branches of industry is largely due to the liberal spirit and good judgment with which the people support the educational system of the state. The proportion of persons who cannot read or write is very small, and they reside mostly in the large cities. The common schools are eagerly sought, and the percentage of attendance is equal to that of any state in the Union.

There was collected by the state, and distributed to counties for educational purposes, in 1885, $210,915.20, and in 1886, 660,063.99. Of this last amount, $488,139.61 was derived from the one mill tax provided by the last legislature.

I would call your attention to the valuable report of the superintendent of public instruction, and the modifications of the laws recommended by him. In the distribution of the moneys to counties, the law, in one section, requires the the school districts to raise an amount equal to that received from the state, and in another section they are, apparently, required to raise but one-half the amount apportioned before being entitled to receive the state money. These differences in the law should be harmonized.

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN.

The University of Wisconsin, I believe, has made commendable progress during the past two years. The attendance has increased, and the work of rebuilding the needed structures, for which the legislature at its last session made provision, has progressed in a very substantial manner. I am pleased to note, in this connection, the practical utility and importance of the technical instruction of the university, as shown by the large amount of work done upon the new buildings by the faculty and students in the mechanical departments. These departments demonstrate the worth of practical education in the useful arts, and are being more highly appreciated year by year.

The agricultural experiment station has proven to be of great value to the agricultural interests of the state, and our farmers are eagerly availing themselves of the useful and practical information disseminated through its bulletins. The agricultural department adopted a short course in agriculture, to meet a need for such instruction, and while there is no doubt of the value of this course, sufficient time has not elapsed to demonstrate whether it will prove successful.

AGRICULTURE.

Agriculture is, beyond question, the leading industry of our state, with more capital invested and more labor employed than all other interests combined; and it deserves, and should receive, most generous consideration. Prosperity in this industry brings prosperity to all others. There have been various propositions presented heretofore in the interest of agriculture and its co-ordinate branches. During the session of 1885, a bill was introduced providing for a separate agricultural college. At that time the farmers of the state were divided in opinion as to the necessity for such an institution, and the bill failed to receive the approval of the legislature.

The dairy interests of Wisconsin have grown to such magnitude, and are of such vast importance to the prosperity of the people, that ample protection should be afforded them. The last legislature passed a law similar to that of the state of New York, protecting the dairy interest against the sale of imitation butter. The New York law has been decided unconstitutional by the courts of that state, and, while no test of the constitutionality of our law has been made in the courts of Wisconsin, I am of the opinion that the law should be so changed as to afford the desired protection, and remove all doubts as to its being in conflict with the constitution.

The legislature of 1885 made provision for holding Farmers' Institutes, by a yearly appropriation of $5,000, to defray expenses. There can be no doubt that the institutes have been productive of good results, and the increased interest taken in them the past year is the best evidence of the appreciation in which they are held. The results of the experience of the leading farmers and dairymen are given at these institutes to those of our farmers who are sufficiently interested in their calling to avail themselves of them, and the information gained by the discussions at these meetings has proven of great practical benefit. I would recommend an increase of the appropriation for this purpose.

The office of state veterinarian, whose duty it should be to investigate infectious and contagious diseases of domestic animals, was created by the last legislature. Under this law I appointed V. T. Atkinson, V. S., of Milwaukee, and his labors have been almost wholly confined to the investigation of glanders, which has existed among the horses in many parts of the State. As the law now stands it is defective in several particulars and should be so amended as to accomplish the objects for which it is intended. The expenses of this officer and the amounts paid the owners for diseased horses slaughtered aggregated the sum of $6,037.72.

INSURANCE.

I am induced to believe that the insurance laws might be modified to some extent, so as to be more beneficial to the business interests of the state. The rate of insurance seems to be increasing throughout the state, while the insurance companies claim that they are making no profits upon their business. As the law now stands, in case of total loss, the insurance company must pay the full amount for which the property is insured without regard to its value. This law has created a tendency to over-insurance, and this over-insurance has in many cases, no doubt, been the cause of the destruction of property by fire, either by engendering a feeling of carelessness or by direct incendiarism. Could some law be so framed as to do away with this tendency, and at the same time not relieve the the insurance companies from the over-zealous acts of their agents in insuring property for more than two-thirds of its value, I believe it would work a reduction of the rates of insurance, and be of great value to the people. To secure proper care, the owner should have some interest in the property that would not be made good to him in case of loss. The owner should not be permitted to recover more than two-thirds of the value of the property destroyed, and at the same time I believe the insurance companies should not be relieved from paying all they contract to pay. This end can be accomplished by enacting a law that will forfeit to the state, to go to the school fund, as other forfeitures and penalties, all that part of the sum contracted for in the policy of insurance that is above two-thirds of the value of the property destroyed.

I also deem it proper to call the attention of the legislature to the growing tendency of insurance companies to combine in fixing the rates of insurance and the division of business. While competition may regulate this, and the insurance companies may not fix unreasonable rates, the matter is one peculiarly for the consideration of the legislature.

I would also urge upon you the wisdom of changing the law providing for the collection of penalties from insurance companies not licensed by the state. The law, no doubt, should provide for the prompt and effective enforcement of all penalties and forfeitures against companies seeking to avoid the payment of their license fees, but the division of the recoveries with the officer I believe to be wrong. The officer upon whom devolves the duty of enforcing these laws should have adequate compensation for his services, and all the expenses should be borne by the state; but the officer should perform his entire duty to the state without contingent interest depending upon the activity or energy with which his duties are performed. The legislature have the undoubted right to enact the law as it stands to-day, and the present law was approved because the subject is one upon which the policy should be determined by the legislature.

RAILROADS.

It is interesting to note the progress of the railroads in the state of Wisconsin. At the close of the year 1850, there were ten miles of completed road—from Milwaukee to Elm Grove. At the close of the year 1860, there were but 875 miles of railroad within our limits. During the time of the war of the rebellion, and the business depression immediately following, there was but little of railway building done. In 1861, 20 miles; in 1862, 56 miles; in 1863, none; in 1864, 72 miles, and during the years 1865, 1866 and 1867, not a mile of track was laid in the state. After the war was over, and the business of the country had recovered from the consequent continued depression and stagnation, railroad building and railroad development began a forward march, and have kept even and steady pace with the other great industries of the state.

To-day the total number of miles of railroad in the state is 4,778.92, constructed at a cost of $184,913,502.07. The average cost per mile was $40,259.32, which includes equipments, buildings and depot grounds. For the year ending June 30, 1886, the earnings of the roads were $20,972,281.60, of which amount $4,930,876.89 was from passengers, $14,575,609.53 from freight, and $1,465,795.18 from mails and express. The labor to produce these earnings has required the services of from 16,000 to 18,000 men, at an average yearly compensation of $600 each. The operating expenses for the period mentioned were $12,311,171.54. The number of tons of freight carried was 6,943,476, at an average cost per ton per mile of 1.31 cents. The number of passengers carried was 5,303,287, at an average cost of 2.7 cents per mile.

A number of new lines are in process of construction, and several are contemplated, which promise to make the coming year one of great activity in this enterprise.

The railroad interest is one of vast importance to all other industries of the state. Legislation affecting railroads should be enacted with a spirit of fairness and with due regard to the transaction of other business. Nothing should be done that would cripple so vital a factor in the state's development; and, at the same time, care should be taken and firmness maintained, that an interest so large does not overreach its legitimate bounds, and interfere with the proper progress of other interests of the state. Nothing should be enacted into law because of public clamor, without ample reasons therefor, and no just or reasonable restraint should be withheld.

ELECTRIC LIGHT.

In compliance with an act of the last legislature, I have considered the advisability of using electric light in the capitol building and grounds. Bids were received from the different electrical lighting companies, and from the local gas company. It was found that the expense of putting in the plant and fixtures for electrical lighting would be about $25,000; and that the additional expense for maintaining and operating the same would be more than the cost of lighting with gas, as offered by the local company. It was, therefore, deemed best to accept the proposition of the gas company, and a contract was made with them for two years, at $1.75 per thousand feet, the state to consume 2,000,000 feet per year. This contract is 75 cents per thousand feet less than before.

WAR RECORDS.

The work of compiling and publishing the war records, in accordance with an act of the last legislature, has been pushed as rapidly as the circumstances and difficulties of the work would permit. The expense of the undertaking has been much more than was anticipated, but the importance of the work has required great thoroughness and accuracy, and the scattered and disordered condition of the war records was found to be much greater than had been expected. The discoveries have shown the great need and importance of the work and have justified the outlay that has been made. The first volume of the publication was received from the press about the first of December, and it will be some time yet before the records of the Adjutant-General's office are completed.

I would call the attention of the legislature to the fact that many of the states, to commemorate the heroic deeds of their troops at the battle of Gettysburg, are erecting memorial tablets to mark the positions of the state's soldiers in that great battle. The state of Wisconsin had six regiments engaged in that hard fought battle, and any tribute the state may make to the acts and deeds of these gallant soldiers has been justly and heroically deserved.

MILITIA.

The strength of the Wisconsin National Guard, on the first day of January, 1887, was 2,254. The last legislature increased the compensation of officers and men while in camp of instruction, and appropriated $9,000 per annum for overcoats and blankets. This amount was expended under direction of the quartermaster-general. One company of infantry and one battery of artillery were organized by authority of the legislature, making in all 37 companies in the organization at this time. There was expended for the maintenance of the National Guard for 1885, $67,789.08, and for 1886, $54,624.75. This last amount includes the expenses of the militia while in active service in Milwaukee during the riots.

The annual inspections of the companies and camps shows a highly creditable advance in all that makes an effective citizen soldiery. The practical test of that efficiency made in May last has demonstrated that the state troops can be assembled in any emergency as rapidly as transportation can be procured for them, and that, when assembled, they are loyal, subordinate, and under admirable instruction and discipline.

CONCLUSION.

You will be called upon to amend and perfect the laws in many respects, and I assure you of my hearty co-operation. The young and innocent should have the especial protection of just and wholesome laws. Temptations, so far as possible, should be removed; and wherein the laws are defective they should be changed or amended so as to make certain those punishments that are deserved. The wants of the people are diversified and numerous, and I have alluded to such subjects only as seem particularly fitting and proper for me. In all your efforts to add to the happiness and material prosperity and welfare of the people, you will have my willing assistance; and trusting in the wisdom of a gracious Providence, I have no doubt as to the result.

MESSAGE FROM THE ASSEMBLY.

To J. W. Taylor, Esq., justice of the peace in and for Iowa county, Wis.:

You are hereby notified that there are owned and kept in the town of Linden, Iowa county, Wis., certain horses affected with glanders, to-wit: Two gray mares, a brown mare and a sorrel mare owned by Joseph Baker, and a cream colored blind horse owned by Jerry Rule; and I deem it necessary to order the slaughter of said animals.

This notice is made in compliance with the provisions of chapter 467 of the laws of 1885.

V. T. ATKINSON,
State Veterinarian.

Dated at Linden, this 29th day of December, 1885.

I certify that the within is a true and correct copy of notice served upon me by State Veterinarian Atkinson, December 29, 1885.

JOHN W. TAYLOR,
Justice of the Peace.

This is to certify that I, to-day, caused to be slaughtered four horses, to-wit: Two gray mares, one sorrel mare and one brown mare, all of which were afflicted with glanders, and all owned by Joseph Baker, of the town of Linden, Iowa county, Wisconsin. I am in doubt as to whether or not the owner is entitled to indemnity, for although he did not report the diseased condition of his animals as required, the chairman of the town board of health informed me that he did not think that such report was necessary as their condition was well known throughout the town, and when he called Baker's attention to the conditions of the new law, he immediately expressed a desire to have investigation; and since that time has readily complied with all reasonable requests.

LETTERS, PETITIONS, ETC.

By Senator Pond:

Pet. No. 4, S.,

To the senate and assembly of the state of Wisconsin:

Your memorialists respectfully represent, that in view of the important part enacted in the great and decisive battle of Gettysburg, Pa., July 1st, 2d and 3d, 1863, by certain Wisconsin regiments, it would be most fitting and just for the living patriots of the state to pay some proper tribute to the memory of those, our patriot dead, who for our flag, the Union and country laid down their lives—a sacrifice in that sanguinary struggle. Gettysburg was the pivotal battle of the War of the Rebellion; and it will forever stand as a monument to the honor of our state, that six regiments of her heroic soldiery participated in that battle the Second, Third, Fifth, Sixth, Seventh and Twenty-sixth regiments. No other state of the Union had better reason to be proud of the bearing and achievements of its volunteers in the grand armies of the rebellion, whether in any particular battle or campaign, or in the aggregate sum of their services, from the first rebel gun at Fort Sumter, down to the closing scenes at Appomatox. The Wisconsin regiments above referred to present a fighting record very rarely paralleled by any regiments ever organized in any war of like duration. The Second participated in twenty engagements and left dead on the field 124 men including seven officers. The Third participated in eighteen battles, and its list of killed numbered 115, including seven officers. The Fifth, in twenty-two battles, lost in killed on the field 110 men, including seven officers. The Sixth in twenty-four battles, lost, killed, 163 men, including thirteen officers. The Seventh in twenty-five battles, lost, killed, 172 men, including eight officers. The Twenty-sixth, in ten battles, had 128 men killed, including eight officers. The total killed in the six regiments named was 812—more than 12 per cent. of six full regiments. On the Gettysburg battle-field alone these six regiments lost in killed 103 men, including 3 men of Co. G, 1st U. S. S. S., five officers, while the entire six regiments, on the morning of the first day's battle, could scarcely have mustered 2,000 fighting men.

These generalized facts, alone, to say nothing of the privations and sufferings by march and camp—of the vigils and perils of picket service—of sickness and death by disease, tell a tale of faithful, brave and heroic sacrifice scarcely paralleled by the soldiery of any war in history. Justice to the living who returned to their homes shattered in health or maimed in limb, as well as a decent regard for the memory of the martyr-dead, unite to demand some appropriate acknowledgment of their services. No money or monuments can adequately repay the living or compensate for the dead. We owe a debt that can never be fully paid; but we can do that which, in some small measure shall acknowledge, in the presence of the living, the illimitable debt we owe, both to the living and the dead. By epitaph and monument, we can so emblazon the sacrifices of our heroic dead, as to set their examples before the coming generations as the purest models of disinterested patriotism.

The loyal people of Pennsylvania formed an organization in 1864, known as the Gettysburg Battle Field Memorial Association, which was incorporated by an act of the General Assembly of that state, April 30, 1864, for the purpose of holding and preserving the battle grounds of Gettysburg, with their natural and artificial defenses, and to perpetuate the same with such memorial structures as might be erected thereon in commemoration of the heroic deeds and achievements of the actors in that great contest. A number of the loyal states whose regiments participated in that battle have erected monuments on the field marking the points where such regiments were most hotly engaged and nearly all of the states whose troops were associated with those of our own, have such monuments in position.

To the end that the memory of our dead may be perpetuated, and that a suitable acknowledgment of their sacrificial death may be made by the people of the state of Wisconsin, your memorialists ask the passage of senate bill, No. 24.

And as in duty bound your memorialists will ever pray.

LETTERS, PETITIONS, ETC.

By Senator Wechselberg:

Pet. No. 6, S.,

To the senate and assembly of the state of Wisconsin, in legislature assembled:

The memorial of Marie Kunkel, of the village of Bay View, in the county of Milwaukee, state of Wisconsin, respectfully represents:

5—S. J.

That she is the widow of Franz Kunkel, who was killed on the 5th day of May, 1886, in consequence of a musket shot fired by the state militia, who then were engaged, under command of Major George P. Treaumer, in quelling a riot at Bay View. That at the time her husband was shot, he was standing in the yard near his house in Bay View and engaged in feeding his chickens. That he in no way or manner participated in said riot, but during the scenes of disturbance was quietly at home. That the gun shot struck him in the breast and caused his death within a few minutes thereafter.

By the sudden unfortunate death of her husband, your memorialist and her two infant children, Augusta, now aged ten years, and Adam, now of the age of eight years, have been left in a very miserable and destitute condition. The home of the family is of but trifling value, and was appraised in probate court of late at $1,000. The same is still subject to some $918 claims and liabilities preferred against the estate by children of prior marriage.

Aside from this, and a scant supply of household furniture and wearing apparel, the deceased left no other property, real or personal, and your memorialist is now obliged to seek support for herself and infants in the returns of her daily bodily labor.

And your memorialist further represents that by the death of said Franz Kunkel, they have lost not only an affectionate and industrious husband and father, but their only support, and under these circumstances your memorialist, in behalf of herself and her infant children, prays that the state do assume the responsibility for its aforesaid wards, which, but for such accidental death, the father would have taken pleasure properly to discharge, and that by proper enactment there be made such pecuniary appropriation for the support of your memorialist and her infant children, as may be just and approximate at least the pecuniary losses which by such accidental killing was caused as aforesaid.

MILWAUKEE, Wis., January 26, 1887.

EMILE GLASER. (

REPORTS OF SPECIAL COMMITTEES.

By Senator Kidd:

To the Honorable, the legislature:

Under the provisions of chapter 298, laws of 1881, the undersigned, appointed by his excellency, the governor, a committee to visit the charitable, reformatory and penal institutions of the state, respectfully submit the following report:

Your committee entered upon the duties assigned them by visiting the state public school.

The object of this institution is to befriend and save children between the age of three and fifteen years, who have been neglected or abandoned, and who are dependent upon the public for support, and to provide for them here a temporary home until homes can be secured for them in good families, in the meantime affording them the means of a moral, intellectual and industrial training.

It was established by the authority of chapter 377, laws of 1885, which made provision for the selection of a suitable site, by the state board of supervision, and making an ap-appropriation of $30,000 for the erection of buildings thereon. The board, under this, purchased a farm containing one hundred and sixty-five acres adjacent to the city of Sparta, and erected thereon three substantial buildings, two of which are of red brick with stone foundations, the other of wood veneered with brick, the whole of sufficient capacity to accommodate one hundred children and necessary employes. The buildings all have basement in which are placed the furnaces and have two stories and attic above. They are well lighted, well ventilated, well heated.

A water tank of 1,700 barrels' capacity has been erected which furnishes water for all the buildings and for use in case of fire, which receives its supply by means of a hydraulic ram worked by the natural flow of water from an artesian well which has been sunk on the premises.

The school was opened for the reception of children on November 13th, 1886, and the first child was admitted November 27th, 1886. Upon the date of our visit, December 30th last, there were eighteen inmates, four girls and fourteen boys. These are being instructed in all branches of education which are taught in the common schools, are comfortably clad, well fed, have clean and comfortable sleeping apartments and are otherwise carefully provided for. The institution is in charge of Rev. R. T. Roberts, who seems to have the good of the unfortunate waifs under his charge at heart, and uses all needful effort to make them contented and happy.

The board estimates that there are at the present time at least five hundred of this unfortunate class of children in the state, and as the buildings already erected will be full to overflowing within the next year, provision should be made by the present legislature for the erection of a main center building to be used for offices, store-room, dining room and laundry, and at least one more cottage of the same general plan as those already built. Provision should also be made for the purchase of stock, necessary farming implements and the building of a barn, and such other improvements as the board may in its discretion think necessary, for it is the opinion of your committee that whether viewed from an economical or humane standpoint, this institution is worthy of a liberal support as it can be clearly shown that a very large percentage of our criminals and paupers are recruited from the class of unfortunates who will, by the opportunity here afforded, be provided with comfortable homes and the moral influences which surround the same.

SCHOOL FOR THE BLIND.

This institution, located at Janesville, is under the very able and efficient management of Mrs. Sarah C. Little, who acts as superintendent and steward, and has also thirteen assistant teachers and other employes. We found the buildings and premises in good condition, the buildings lighted by gas and well heated and ventilated, and the sanitary condition all that could be desired. The kitchen, laundry, dining and supply rooms, dormitories and school rooms were clean and in good order, and the food given was of sufficient variety, wholesome and well cooked. Water tanks, placed in the attic of the main building, into which the water is forced by steam pumps, furnishes an abundant supply of water to meet all requirements of the institution. The scholars are instructed in all the branches usually taught in the common schools, and are in addition given a thorough musical training, and the advancement they make, and the proficiency they attain in all the studies named is remarkable. In a factory the trades of carpet weaving, weaving of chair bottoms, fly-nets, etc., are taught, and the revenue derived therefrom applied for useful purposes about the school.

The number of pupils in attendance upon the date of our visit, January 5th last, was 74. The average attendance for 1885, as shown by the record, was 62, and for the year last past, 66. The weekly cost per capita for 1885 was six dollars and three cents, and for 1886 five dollars and nine cents. There were no deaths in this school for the two years named. The aggregate cost to the state for 1885 was $19,745.05, and for 1886 was $17,484.46, making a total cost to the state for the two years named of $37,229.51. The difference in cost of the two years named was in consequence of extraordinary repairs having been made in the first year of the biennial term. The weekly cost per capita is higher here than in any of the other state institutions, which is attributed to the fact that the school population is small, and corps of teachers necessarily large for the method of instruction here of necessity used. The estimated capacity of this institution is one hundred pupils, as is shown above. The attendance during the past two years has not reached two-thirds of that number. The state census report shows that there are more than a sufficient number of this unfortunate class within the state to fill this school, and we do not hesitate to say that the parents of this class fail utterly in their duty to their progeny when they neglect to give them the educational advantages as well as the mechanical and moral training which is here afforded.

SCHOOL FOR THE DEAF.

This institution is under the management of Prof. J. W. Swiler, who is superintendent and steward, and has under him twenty-three officers and employes. The main buildings are in good repair, newly painted, well lighted, clean and well ventilated, and in excellent sanitary condition, as proven by the fact that the records of the school show that there has been but two deaths among inmates during the past two years. The scholars here are instructed in all the branches which are taught in common schools, and in addition drawing and painting. We visited the different classes during school hours and feel confident that the scholars are learning rapidly, and that their instructors are performing their duties in a very satisfactory manner. In connection with the school is a printing office, where both male and female are taught this art, and also a boot and shoe factory and carpenter shop, where these trades are taught by competent instructors. A new boiler house, coal vault and laundry have been built, and boilers and machinery have been moved from the position formerly occupied under the main building into the same, since the last session of the legislature. The wooden building now occupied as a printing office, hospital and dormitory for small boys has become old and somewhat delapidated, and should, for the comfort of the inmates and also for appearances, be either greatly repaired or a new and more substantial building erected in its stead. There is also need of a larger and better lighted studio, which can be secured by placing heating appliances and necessary fixtures in a large roomy attic above the main school room at a comparatively small cost. At the time of our visit, January 6th, last, the number of scholars present was 194. The average school population for 1885 was 205, and 195 for 1886. The weekly per capita cost as shown by the records of the school, was $3.53 for 1885, and $3.85 for 1886. The net cost to the state for the years named was $76,628.46.

INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL FOR BOYS

Is now and has been for years under the management of its present superintendent, W. H. Sleep, who has under him an assistant steward, treasurer and seven teachers. There were at the date of our visit, January 8th, 335 inmates, who are here being disciplined for offenses of greater or less degree, and those of the number who are without homes are provided with the same whenever opportunity is afforded and is found practicable. They are here taught all branches of study taught in the common schools and special attention is given to their moral training. In connection with the school there is a boot and shoe factory, a knitting factory, tailor shop and carpenter shop in which the inmates are required to work, for a certain number of hours each day, and they are also required to keep rooms in good order, wash dishes, scrub floors, take care of their own dormitories, etc. In summer the well-stocked farm upon which the buildings are located, furnishes employment for a certain number of hours each day, and makes of this feature of the institution the source of a considerable revenue. The boys are not overworked, however, and are comfortably clothed and fed upon wholesome, substantial food, and otherwise well provided for. We believe that a large majority of the boys here confined are not naturally vicious, but that their downfall is to be attributed to a great extent, to neglect upon the part of parents, or those upon whom they are a proper charge, and it is a significant fact that 42 per cent. of the population of this school are children of divorced parents, or orphans, and that 90 per cent. of all committed, regardless of age, by reason of educational neglect, necessarily enter the primary department of the school. As shown by the records there has been but one death during the past two years, which speaks well for its sanitary condition. The average population was 292 for 1885, and 300 for 1886. The weekly per capita cost to the state was $3.00 for 1885 and $2.69 for 1886. The net cost to the state for the two years past has been $87,560.71. The Wisconsin Central Railroad Company has surveyed a line of road across one corner of the farm, and desires to purchase the right of way. As it does not materially detract from its value as a farm or otherwise, and the company is willing to pay a just price therefore, this legislature should by law empower the state board at its discretion to sell the same. Provision should also be made for the building of a new piggery, and other needful repairs of minor importance.

STATE HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE.

This asylum is under the superintendence of Dr. S. B. Buckmaster, who has 125 assistants, officers and employes. The number of inmates upon January 1st, the date of our visit, was 533. We visited each ward in the institution and feel confident that the superintendent, his assistants and employes are doing all that can be done for the safety, comfort and recovery of this unfortunate class. On the first day of August last all mechanical restraints were removed by order of the superintendent, who informed us that there had been none used since that time, a marked improvement upon the methods formerly employed.

The food furnished the inmates was examined by us, as were also supplies of all kinds, and were found to be of good quality. We also visited the barns and farm and found the same in good order and condition, and well stocked with horses, cattle and hogs, and is so managed that by the use of the labor of patients who are but partially insane, as to be a source of revenue, the income from this source over and above outlay during the past two years having been $8,539.37.

Since the last meeting of the legislature the board of supervisors have made substantial repairs and improvements. A water tower 60 feet high, with tank thereon, with a ca-capacity of 3,000 barrels for five hydrants, and water works has been erected, fresh air ducts have been added, small steam mains have been replaced by larger ones, steam pipes have been covered with asbestos covering, alterations have been made in appliances for ventilation, the main building has been repointed and repainted and other necessary repairs made.

The average population was 515 for 1885 and 525 for 1886. The weekly per capita cost was $3.53 for 1885, and $3.46 for 1886. The net cost to the state for past biennial term was $188,753.70. The mortality in this institution has been light, there having been but 43 deaths in 1885 and 37 deaths in 1886.

There is near this hospital a five acre tract of land upon which is a small frame house, and which is surrounded on all sides by land belonging to the institution, for obvious reasons this should be purchased by the state. The board should be given by this legislature, discretionary power to purchase the same at a reasonable price. There is also need of a better and purer water supply for drinking and culinary purposes which can easily be had by sinking an artesian well upon the premises to the depth of about 350 or 400 feet.

THE NORTHERN HOSPITAL FOR THE INSANE.

This institution is in charge of Dr. R. M. Wigginton, superintendant, assisted by 119 officers and employes, and at the time of our visit January 2d, had 669 inmates. In the year 1884 the main building suffered great damage by fire, which has been repaired since the last session of the legislature and is now we believe in better condition than ever before. Here as at the state hospital we visited, each ward, basement, kitchen, laundry and supply room and found all neat and clean. The dining room, sitting rooms and dormitories were well lighted and comfortable, and the inmates are well clothed and fed, and while the superintendant makes no claim to having abandoned all mechanical restraints in the treatment of the inmates, the practice of this method is reduced to the minimum and none is used without reporting the fact to the ward supervisor or to the superintendent. The farm is well stocked and well cared for, and the barns and graneries have an unusually large supply of hay, corn, oats and straw for the unfavorable season just past. The average population here for the past two years has been 631, and the weekly cost per capita, including all cost of repairs was $3.73 for 1885 and $3.22 for 1886. The net cost to the state for the biennial term just past was $228,039.43. There were 41 deaths in 1885 and 49 deaths in 1886. [More land could be used at this institution to advantage, and as an opportunity is now offered the state to purchase a farm adjoining, containing 60 acres, we would recommend that the same be purchased if it can be done at a fair price.] There are at present in the two state hospitals a considerable number of inmates chargeable to the state at large, who are classed as chronic insane, and as a measure of relief for these institutions we recommend the amendment of the law relating to county asylums so as to provide that the class above named may be admitted to those institutions in a similar manner and at the same cost to the state as those provided for in county asylums.

STATE PRISON.

The state prison is under the immediate supervision of Col. Geo. W. Carter, who is warden, with Captain E. D. Henry as his deputy. At the date of our visit, there were 452 male and 13 female convicts. Like all the other state institutions visited, the buildings were in good repair and condition and the system of ventilation as good as can be made practicable in institutions of this character, and the buildings, kitchen supply room and cells are kept clean. The food furnished the convicts is of a wholesome nature. The board of supervision in the year 1885, purchased a farm of 110 acres at a cost of $4,500, which purchase was authorized by the last legislature, and have also built a new and substantial root and ice-house. The convicts are kept under the strictest discipline, but cruelty to them is in no case practiced, and under the system of grading, such convicts, except those who are imprisoned for life, may by good behavior earn what is called good time, which materially lessens the term of their imprisonment. We are pleased to note that many of them take advantage of the opportunity thus afforded to make a good record and thereby shorten their sentence. All able bodied convicts, except those who are needed to perform the ordinary routine work, are required to labor ten hours each day in the manufacture of boots and shoes under state contract by which the state receives fifty cents per day per man for each day's labor performed. The total amount earned for the state by the convicts in this manner during the two years last past was $99,634.43. The number of persons committed, as shown by the record, in 1885 was 237 and 231 in 1886, and the number discharged in 1885 was 199, and 220 in 1886. The average population for the years named was 443 and 456 respectively. The number of life convicts is 51, those imprisoned for murder 63, and for manslaughter 26, and the death rate for 1885 was 7, and 2 in 1886. The average weekly per capita cost was $2.39 for 1885 and $2.62 in 1886. The actual cost including the purchase of farm $4,500, as reduced by the labor of prisoners themselves was only 37 cents per week per capita named, making actual aggregate cost to the state for the two years named of $17,473.00.

The boiler and engine used for operating machinery of the boot and shoe factory is considered unsafe and badly worn, having been in use for many years, and were in addition damaged by the fire which occurred in the year 188—, and an appropriation should be made by this legislature for the purchase of new ones. The prison is now nearly filled to its utmost capacity, and provisions should be made in the near future for the erection of an additional prison to be used as a reformatory for the younger and less hardened class of criminals. The time for which the labor of the convicts was contracted, under a system which has been practiced in years past, will expire with the present calendar year, and one of the most important questions to be settled during the present session of the legislature is, whether or not this system shall be abolished. Your committee are of the opinion that no hasty steps should be taken toward a radical change. No intelligent laboring man, certainly no humanitarian, would for a moment insist upon this class being held in enforced idleness. Such a course would be cruel, if not barbarous, and would make of our state prison a recruiting station from which to fill our already crowded insane asylums to overflowing. Constant toil at no productive labor would be equally as pernicious. It is also self-evident that if employed at productive labor of any kind their labor will come in competition with same class outside of prison walls; that form of employment then which proves most remunerative to the state, which at the same time creates but the minimum of competition with free labor is, in our judgment, the most practicable method both for the state and the individual of disposing of this question. Fortunately the industry in which our convicts are employed is one of this class. Abolish our present system and we necessitate the appropriation of not less than $350,000 at the present session with which to carry on any remunerative industry, and this outlay would, we believe, be without any corresponding benefit to either the convict or the laboring man. The competition with outside labor would not be reduced, and from the standpoint of the humanitarian the benefit to the convict would be of an extremely doubtful character.

Should the industry in which our convicts are at present employed prove upon inquiry to come into too great competition with the class of tradesmen and manufacturers engaged therein, we believe it will be the duty of the state to seek to establish a diversity of industries in the prison, and thereby reduce competition in any one line of manufacture.

CONCLUSION.

In our visits to all of the institutions named, we examined their records in detail, their system of keeping and auditing accounts, etc., and are convinced that they are kept in a correct and satisfactory manner, and by competent persons. The system is one that commends itself and under its workings all danger of defalcation and dishonest practice is reduced to the minimum. The methods of making estimates and purchases are admirable as a whole, and all supplies are purchased at very low rates. Many of the staple articles are purchased in bulk in sufficient quantities. In our judgment economy of expenditure might be somewhat promoted by the application of the same method in the purchase of nearly if not quite all supplies needed for their use. We are confident, however, that the Board of Supervision are engaged in an earnest effort to care for those under their charge, not only in a humane, but also thoroughly business-like manner. That while nothing has been denied the inmates that has been essential to their comfort, an economical expenditure of the public funds placed in their charge has at all times been considered. As shown by the records they have in no case exceeded the appropriations made at the last session of the legislature for the support of the several institutions under their charge, and at the close of the biennial term just past leave in the state treasury an unexpended balance of $58,000 and this, as we believe, without detriment to the public service. In this respect they have made of themselves a conspicuous example which may be followed with profit to the state by officials who have other public trusts in charge.

LETTERS, PETITIONS, ETC.

By Senator Ginty:

Pet. No. 22, S.,

A petition from the executive committee of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, concerning the exploration of emblematic mounds in Wisconsin.

To the Honorable, the Legislature of Wisconsin:

The antiquities of Wisconsin have interested the world ever since the first settlement within our borders. The ancient city of Aztalan awakened curiosity and drew attention to the region very early in our history. Next in interest come our emblematic mounds. Nothing like them can be found elsewhere in the world. The scientists of Europe are quite as much interested in the pre-historic remains to be found in this state as the scientists of America. Writers of history, who touch upon American topics, mention these existing relics of the past in their works. Pleasure seekers and those who make of our beautiful state a summer resort, are beginning to visit them as objects of curiosity and attractive features in the landscape.

The mounds are often in the shape of birds and animals, and are excellent representations, in numerous attitudes, of the creatures which once made their habitat in this region. As representatives of the state of art in pre-historic times, they are interesting and instructive.

They are also useful to us as records. They were the divinities of the people who built them, and remind us of their superstitions, their social customs and their political organizations.

These emblematic mounds of Wisconsin, wonders to archæologists everywhere, are, unfortunately, fast passing away under the plow or as victims of relic-hunters, who, in careless and unscientific excavations, destroy their shapes, and carry the valuable relics they contain out of the state, to adorn the cabinets of scientific institutions elsewhere, or be placed upon the market for the patronage of the curious.

It is desirable that a thorough, scientific survey of the mounds should be made and placed of record, before they are further destroyed; and their relics secured, to be placed and properly classified in the cabinet of the State Historical Society, for the edification and instruction of ourselves and our posterity.

Rev. Stephen D. Peet, the editor of The American Antiquarian, and a well-known archæologist, has for five years past been exploring the emblematic mounds of Wisconsin, at his own expense. He has made considerable progress in his survey, has written and published much on the subject, and is to-day, we believe, generally recognized among American scientists as the foremost expert in this interesting branch of archæology.

He now proposes to complete this survey, under the auspices of the State Historical Society, devoting his entire energies to the work, placing such relics as he may exhume in the cabinet of the society, as the property of the state, and preparing for ultimate publication a final detailed report to the society of the survey, with all essential data, placed of record with scientific accuracy, and the effigies properly illustrated with drawings to scale.

This great work should be accomplished while the emblematic mounds are still in sight. At the present rate of destruction, it would be practically impossible a decade hence; while each year, owing to the growth of agricultural needs and the enterprise of relic hunters, the number of remains is materially lessening. The time now seems ripe for the enterprise. Much of the preliminary work has already been done. Mr. Peet has the erudition, the training and personal enthusiasm essential to an investigation of this character, and it would seem advisable to take advantage of his offer while we may.

He desires to perform the task under the auspices of this society, aided by a modest state appropriation, no part of which to be paid until this committee shall certify to the secretary of state that the survey is being properly conducted, according to the spirit of the grant.

We would respectfully ask that the matter be referred to the senate committee on State Affairs, with instructions to report by bill or otherwise.

Adopted by the executive committee of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, February 7, 1887.

Attest:

REUBEN G. THWAITES,
Corresponding Secretary.

MESSAGE FROM THE ASSEMBLY.

LETTERS, PETITIONS, ETC.

By Senator Wechselberg:

Pet. No. 23, S.,

To the Honorable, the Senate and Assembly of the State of Wisconsin:

GENTLEMEN:—The petition of Lena Kunkel respectfully represents and shows, that she is a daughter of Franz Kunkel, deceased, who was accidentally and innocently killed by shots fired by the state militia at the time of the disturbances in May last in the village of Bay View. That since her fourteenth year and for ten years last past she has worked in families other than her own, doing house work and thereby not only supported herself, but saving from time to time small amounts of money, which, when so earned and saved, she handed to her father with the understanding between them, that she should receive it back from him whenever she needed it or might want to use it. That she paid to her father as aforesaid in all the sum of at least six hundred dollars, and that said sum of six hundred dollars was due and owing to her from her father at the time of his death. That her father left no property except one-half lot in the village of Bay View, with two houses on the same. That her father bought said half lot, with one of said houses thereon about seven years ago for about the sum of four hundred dollars, and that in the year 1885 he erected the other house at a cost of about six hundred dollars. That he also left some household furniture and no other property or money to the knowledge of your petitioner. That her father left surviving him, a widow and five children; three children amongst them your petitioner by his first wife and two by his second wife. That his said widow and her said two children now reside at the said new house on said half lot and that your petitioner is informed and believes, that said widow claims said property as a homestead. That the estate of her father is being probated in the county court of Milwaukee county; that the time for presenting claims against said estate has expired; that no claims were presented against said estate except a claim by your petitioner duly verified for six hundred dollars for money loaned and arising as hereinbefore set forth; and a claim presented by her sister Julia Kunkel for about three hundred dollars, being a claim of the same nature as her own; that no objections have been made or filed by the administrator of said estate, or any one else, against either of said claims, the facts stated herein about said claims being known to be true by the administrator and other people.

Wherefore your petitioner represents and prays: That if any allowance be made on account of the death of her father, Franz Kunkel, which your petitioner prays should be done; that the allowance should be made for the real and actual sufferers on account of said death, and that she be allowed and paid the sum of six hundred dollars, the amount of her said claim, which her father would pay to her in money or property, if alive.

LENA KUNKEL.

STATE OF WISCONSIN,)
County of Milwaukee.) ss

Lena Kunkel, being duly sworn, says that the foregoing petition, by her subscribed, is true in every respect to her own knowledge, except as the matters therein stated on information and belief and as to those matters she believes it to be true.

LENA KUNKEL.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 8th day of February, 1887.

Petition of Wisconsin Dairymen's Association.

At the annual meeting of the Wisconsin Dairymen's Association, held at Sparta, February 8, 9 and 10, 1887, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That the association ask of the legislature a law, with proper police authority, to prevent the manufacture and sale of any form of adulterated cheese for the pure article. That any adulterated cheese shall be branded and sold for what it is; that any violation of this law shall incur a penalty of not less than $100 for the first offense. There must be a suppression of the practice of adulteration of cheese, or the cheese industry of Wisconsin will suffer almost irreparable loss.

Resolved, That in view of the powerful influence exerted by this association in the development of the agricultural worth of the state, by promoting the spread of dairy knowledge among the people, this convention respectfully petition the legislature, now in session, to appropriate the sum of $2,000 to this association for the purpose of sustaining the large expense of its annual conventions, and such other effort as may be deemed practicable for the better promotion of our dairy interests.

Resolved, That we recognize in the Farmers' Institute one of the best means ever devised in this or any other state for bringing farmers together for the purpose of discussion of subjects effecting their interests as tillers of the soil. We, therefore, as associated dairymen, earnestly request the members of our present legislature to favorably consider the bill asking for an appropriation to continue this most important work, in bringing a knowledge of improved methods of practice to the farmers of our state.

Jt. Res., No. 39.,

Relative to the centennial of the settlement of the northwest territory by Americans; and to an exposition illustrative of Ohio's progress during this century.

Passed February 3, 1887.

WHEREAS, This general assembly did at its last session by joint resolution passed unanimously, distinctly recognize the great importance of the acquisition and occupation of the territory northwest of the river Ohio, and did recommend a celebration of those events, and also did recommend the erection of a suitable memorial structure at Marietta, Ohio, commemorative of the services of the men who laid the foundations of free states within the aforesaid territory, and

WHEREAS, The general assembly did also recommend an exposition of the industrial and educational progress of the people of Ohio, to be held in her capital city in the autumn of 1888, and

WHEREAS, The four states, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, which, with Ohio, comprise the old northwest territory, and therefore have in common a historical interest in these events and in the proposed proceedings commemorative thereof, and

WHEREAS, The general assembly of the state of Ohio, fully recognizing the importance and significance of our great organic law—the ordinance of 1787—and of the first settlement of our soil made in pursuance thereof, at Marietta, April 7, 1788, and that the occasion of its centennial should be made one in which not only the state of Ohio, but the other states forming the northwest territory, can participate, and believing it to be the earnest wish of the people of Ohio, that the five great commonwealths now comprising this territory should unite in the social celebration of these events at Marietta, Ohio, in April, 1888, and also in the industrial and educational exposition at the capital in the autumn of the same year, therefore

Be it resolved, By the general assembly of the state of Ohio, that a cordial invitation be extended to the people of the heretofore mentioned states, to participate in the efforts now in progress to celebrate these events and to preserve for the benefits of posterity, the memories of those who laid the enduring foundations of republican institutions in the central portion of this great republic.

Resolved, second: That the governor is hereby requested to transmit to the executive of each of the states of Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin, copies of this joint resolution in such manner and with such greeting and formal invitations as he may deem proper.

No. 24, S.,

A bill to appropriate a certain sum of money therein named to the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Association, and for the erection of monuments on the battlefield of Gettysburg,

Pennsylvania, and to defray the expense of the commission herein provided for.

Senator Pond spoke as follows in support of the bill:

MR. PRESIDENT:—History furnishes ample proof that the existence of nations depends, in a large degree, in perpetuating the great and noble deeds of those who have lived and labored, suffered and died for the amelioration of the condition of their fellow men. Kings, rulers and statesmen of all ages have well understood this mighty influence and the most intelligent and stable governments of the old world have been the most lavish in the outlay of money to commemorate, by tablets and monuments, the names, the characters, the services and the heroic deeds of their benefactors. At this time and place I do not deem it necessary that anything should be said in support of this bill, yet a statement of some of the facts which seemed to warrant its introduction and demand its favorable consideration may be proper. The object sought by the appropriation asked for in the bill, commends itself to the loyalty and intelligence of this commonwealth.

Citizens of this country are familiar with the history of the late war. They know that nearly a quarter of a century ago there was a great tragedy on the beautiful fields of Gettysburg, which beggars description. The skill of great painters, the art of renowned sculptors, the glowing words of ornate and classic orators, the pen of gifted writers, and the divine gift of poesy, have essayed to depict and represent the famous battle of Gettysburg, yet all combined have given only a faint realization of the sublime but awful grandeur of the scene there enacted, on the first, second and third of July, eighteen hundred and sixty-three. Two great armies, composed of brave and gallant men, well disciplined, well drilled and well officered, met on that field, at that time, to decide the fate of this nation.

One fought under the grand old flag of their fathers, for the preservation of the Union and the equal rights of man—the other under a treasonable banner, for disunion, and the “so-called” rights of man to enslave his fellow man. For three long, dreadful, yet glorious days, the blue and the gray swept over those fields like the angry waves of the ocean, the smoke of battle above their heads, the earth wet with the crimson life current from comrades and kindred, and trembling beneath their feet with the thunder of cannon.

Then there came a lull in that horrible tempest, and the invading hosts, disheartened by defeat, weary, wounded and bleeding, left nearly forty thousand of their number—killed, wounded and missing—and hastened back to the sacred soil of Virginia.

The battle was the beginning of the end; the high water mark of the rebellion, and from its heights the victory of Appomatox was plainly discernable. When the history of the famous battles of the world is written up to the present time, the battle of Gettysburg will have a place upon its pages as the sixteenth.

Soon after the great conflict at Gettysburg, a portion of the field, now known to the world as Cemetery Hill, was selected as the last resting place of the union dead, and the imposing ceremonies on the occasion of the dedication of the National Cemetery, were witnessed by forty thousand people. None can ever forget that the striking feature of that occasion was the presence of our martyred president, Abraham Lincoln. His dedicatory oration, short, yet comprehensive, tender, earnest and truthful, and wonderfully eloquent in its simplicity, will live as long as the language in which it was delivered shall endure.

"In 1864 the Gettysburg Battlefield Memorial Association was organized for the purpose of holding and preserving the battle grounds, their natural and artificial defences, and to perpetuate the same with such memorial structures as might be erected thereon, in commemoration of the heroic deeds and achievements of the actors in that great contest."

The purpose is a lofty one, and the association deserves much praise for the noble work it has so unselfishly done to gain the object sought. There are now upon that field about one hundred memorial indications, placed there by different states whose troops were engaged in that battle. Nearly every state, except Wisconsin, has already appropriated from $500 to $1,000 for each of their regiments and organizations, for memorials. It has been truly said that gratitude for eminent services, loyalty and fidelity to home and country, suffering and hardships endured, and sacrifices made in a holy cause, is one of the noblest traits in human character.

Wisconsin desires to fall in line with her sister states, in this good work; she wants to give some evidence of her gratitude to her fallen soldiers at Gettysburg, by perpetuating their heroic deeds, for all time to come, in such a manner as shall teach future generations, that to die for country, is not to die, but to live always in the esteem and grateful remembrance of their countrymen. Such evidences of a nation's gratitude are the fittest and truest earthly reward for noble services, as well as the best incentive to lives of devotion to country and enduring patriotism. Wisconsin's soldiers were second to none from other states. Her loyal citizens, men and women, were not excelled by any in their zealous work in aid and sympathy with the soldiers at the front, and in their labor of love in caring for the sick and wounded.

The part taken by Wisconsin soldiers at Gettysburg, if properly recorded, will make many pages and chapters in our war history as interesting, instructive and brilliant as any written in modern or ancient time. Neither the charge of the "heavies," or the "Light Brigade" on the plains of Balaklava, nor the heroism of the Spartan band in defense of the mountain pass of Thermopylea, furnishes greater instances of true soldierly qualities, noble, daring and self-sacrificing devotion, than the deeds of Wisconsin's soldiers who sleep their last sleep on nearly every battlefield of the late war.

This grand state, which we all love, discharged her whole duty to the general government during those dark and gloomy days, and she will not fail in the duty she owes her soldier dead, their fathers and mothers, sisters and brothers, widows and orphans and to posterity. She will not haggle about the amount of the appropriation asked for, and knowing what other states have done she will not hesitate or be indifferent in this matter. I feel sure it is the heartfelt desire of all the old soldiers of Wisconsin, living; of the kindred of those who fell upon that fateful field; and of all loyal citizens within our borders, that the bill under consideration do pass, and, that it pass with such a unanimity, as to reflect credit upon loyal Wisconsin. The battle of Gettysburg was fought on loyal soil; its magnitude and far-reaching consequences give it rank among the world's great battles. It is conceded that it was the turning point in the war to preserve the Union. The Union army, though the least in number, gained a signal victory. The battle lasted longer, and was more hotly contested than the battle of Waterloo; the casualties were greater and the result was vastly more important to the world. The effect of the victory reached out over the world with a power that helped to improve the condition of all the sons and daughters of men everywhere. Waterloo established monarchy in Europe, but the success of the Union arms at Gettysburg, was a victory for liberty and the cause of humanity throughout the world. It caused the foreboding clouds which were gathering across the Atlantic to disappear; it changed hesitancy to decision and doubt to belief; it sent a ray of hope to all lovers of free governments; it determined the unity and the perpetuity of the American Union, and proved that republics are not the weakest, but the strongest governments established on earth.

These are some of the reasons why that field has been selected as the memorial battlefield of the war, and why we ask to have that ground—dedicated to liberty by the sacrifice of so many noble lives—speak to the living from enduring memorials thereon, of their worth.

The loyalty of to-day approves of the gracious and beneficent course taken in the matter, and loyalty in the future will reverentially acknowledge its indebtedness to the inexhaustible fountains of holy patriotic inspiration drawn from that sacred field. Make the ground where our heroes fell a shrine of patriotic love and devotion. Mark it with statues, tablets and monuments, commemorative of their gallant deeds, and though they be dumb, they will speak more elo-quently than human lips—though they be cold, they will enkindle in the heart a fervent heat, and though inanimate they will be most efficient teachers of fidelity to country; standing armies, forts and arsenals, for the protection of home and native land.

In the beautiful words of Col. O'Hara:

"These faithful heralds, blazoned stones,
With mournful pride shall tell,
When many a vanished age hath flown,
The story how they fell;
Nor wreck, nor change, nor winter's flight,
Nor time's remorseless doom,
Shall mar one ray of glory's light
That gilds their deathless tomb."

The bill was then ordered engrossed and read a third time.

By Senator Kidd:

Pet. No. 43, S.,

Petition to the legislature of the state of Wisconsin, pertaining to the matter of the immigration to this country of the defective and dependent classes.

To the honorable, the legislature of the state of Wisconsin:

In the name of the Wisconsin State Memorial Society, we do most earnestly petition and set forth as follows: It is known that large numbers of the defective and dependent classes from foreign countries are coming to the United State annually; that these classes represent the great proportion of our insane, paupers, criminals, deaf mutes, the blind, idiots, lepers, etc. That by comparison of the United States census for the different decades, it will be noticed that the number is rapidly increasing, that this is especially so as regards the insane. That the census of 1880, goes to show that only one-eighth of the population of the United States is of foreign birth, yet this element furnishes one-third of our insane, one-third of our paupers and one-third of our criminals, that the average class of immigration to this country is now of a lower grade than formerly. That our national laws are not sufficiently potent to prevent this indiscriminate immigration; that the individual states and territories cannot act independently. That the cost to the several states and territories for the care, maintenance, commitments, trials, imprisonment, etc., of these classes is enormous.

That the influence of this element upon society is degrading and lasting, and that it is fast propagating itself throughout the land, and lowering the mental, moral and physical standard of our people. That the children brought into the world by this class are as low in the mental, moral and physical scale as their progenitors.

That your petitioners believe it is the duty of congress to enact such laws as will forever prevent this indiscriminate immigration and at the same time foster and protect the immigration of the healthy and prosperous classes.

That this evil is felt in all sections of the country, but more especially in the north and northwest. That in 1880 there were in the United States 92,000 insane, and of this number 26,346 were of foreign birth.

That there were over 88,000 paupers and of this number nearly 23,000 were of foreign birth.

That there were 59,255 prisoners, and of this number nearly 13,000 were of foreign birth. Of our own state of Wisconsin in 1880 there were 2,526 insane, of which 1,476, more than one-half, were of foreign birth. There were 2,028 paupers, of which over 1,000 were of foreign birth, and of the 598 prisoners of the state 232 were foreign born. That of the 1,315,497 population of the state we have 405,425 of foreign birth, or only about one-third of the population born out of the United States, being about thirty per centum of the entire population, yet we have in our state 58 per cent. of the insane, 50 per cent. of the paupers and nearly 40 per cent. of the criminals coming from the foreign element, which numbers only about one-third of our population, or in round numbers in proportion to the population twice as many of foreign birth. These are alarming facts. To illustrate further, of the 644 admissions to the Northern Hospital for the past two years three hundred and seventy-two, or nearly fifty-eight per centum, were of foreign birth. But when we come to go a little further and consider the parentage, we find that of the six hundred and forty-four admissions, we have five hundred and four, or over seventy-eight per centum born of foreign parents. In addition to the committee, Dr. K. Hoegh, of La Crosse, was appointed, who reports as follows: "Large numbers of lepers, or persons suffering from leprosy, immigrate to this country, dating from about the year 1840 up to the present time, chiefly coming from Norway. That the official statistics of Norway indicate that sixty-four lepers have been sent to this country between the years of 1857 and 1882. That in Norway there are no laws preventing the immigration of this class to this country. That leprosy is presumed to be a contagious disease. That in the course of the disease all lepers become paupers and are ultimately thrown upon public or private charity.

Therefore we urgently and respectfully call your attention to these great and growing evils to the end that through your honorable body congress may be induced to take immediate and active measures to pass the proper laws for the healthy regulation of the present unguarded and indiscriminate immigration to this country of the defective classes.

Signed,

R. M. WIGGINTON,

M. C. No. 5, S.,

Memorial to congress asking for the prohibition or restriction of immigration of the vicious, defective and dependent classes.

To the honorable, the senate and house of representatives, in congress assembled: The legislature of Wisconsin now in session, would most respectfully represent that large numbers of the vicious, defective and dependent classes from foreign countries are annually coming to the United States and that these classes constitute the greater portion of our criminals, idiots, insane, deaf mutes, blind, lepers, paupers, etc., and that said classes, by the census reports of the United States for the different decades, are shown to be on the increase, especially so as regards insanity; and further, that the last census shows that only one-eighth furnishes thirty-three per cent. of our insane, our paupers and our criminals; and it is further well known that the progeny of these classes are, as low in the moral, mental and physical scale as their progenitors. That while the evil effects of the immigration are felt throughout the country at large, they are more especially felt in the north and northwest, particularly in the state of Wisconsin, where, in 1880, they furnished over fifty per cent. of the insane, fifty per cent. of the paupers, and nearly fifty per cent. of the criminals.

That it is also shown that large numbers of persons afflicted with leprosy have of late years been brought to this country to become ultimate objects of public or private charity. That the cost to the several states and territories afflicted with the above classes for the care, maintenance, commitments, trials, imprisonments, etc., etc., is enormous, yet they are impotent to prohibit or restrict their immigration; but believing that congress has such power, we most respectfully memorialize you to enact such laws as shall forever prohibit the immigration of the classes above indicated, and at the same time, encourage, foster and protect the immigration of the honorable, healthy and prosperous classes, as it is believed that the average class of immigration to this country is now of a lower grade than in former years. Believing as we do that this is a subject of vital importance, we respectfully and urgently request that congress will take early action and enact such laws as may effectually correct the evils above set forth.

M. C. No. 6, S.,

Asking congress to establish a system of post office savings banks.

WHEREAS, Several postmasters general have recommended the adoption of a postal system of savings for the people of the United States; and,

WHEREAS, The committee on the post office and post roads to whom was referred the bill H. R. 4198, in closing their report, say: Your committee believe the provisions of this bill to be wise and that by its operations both the depositor and the government would be mutually benefited. We also believe that this business can properly be conducted by the post office department. The latter is now engaged in carrying merchandise and selling exchange for the sole purpose of adding to the commercial facilities of the people, while the system hereby proposed will not only prove a great convenience, but will elevate the standard of citizenship, and largely promote the prosperity of all.

Recognizing the obligations which we, as legislators, owe to that numerous class upon whose industry, frugality, and resulting virtues, the prosperity of our country, and the permanence of its institutions must at all times rest, we believe all technical objections which stand in the way of their best interests should be swept aside, and that the welfare of these, the industrious, the producing millions of our land, should be given paramount consideration.

We therefore recommend the passage of the bill as amended; therefore be it

Resolved, by the senate, the assembly concurring, That our senators and representatives in congress be, and are hereby requested to use their best endeavors to secure the organization of a system of postal savings banks.

Resolved, That the governor be, and is hereby requested to transmit a copy of the foregoing preamble and resolution to each of our senators and representatives in congress.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION.

Executive Department,

MADISON, February 25, 1887.

To the Honorable, the Legislature:

In compliance with the requirements of the constitution, I transmit herewith a report of pardons granted during the years 1885 and 1886, together with the reasons for granting the same.

J. M. RUSK,
Governor.

LIST OF PARDONS

Granted during the years of 1885 and 1886, with statement of reasons for granting same, transmitted to the legislature in obedience to the requirements of section 6, of article 5, of the constitution.

FROM STATE PRISON.

OTTO HINZ.—Convicted before the circuit court of Green Lake county, January 20, 1883, of incest, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of three years. Pardon granted February 5, 1885, for the reason that it is believed he has been sufficiently punished. Pardon recommended by the judge, district attorney, eleven jurors, and many citizens of Green Lake county.

GEORGE SEAGER.—Convicted before the circuit court for Fond du Lac county, December 23, 1882, of manslaughter in the third degree, and sentenced to imprisonment in the state prison for a term of three years. Pardoned February 7, 1885, for the reason that it is believed as much good has been accomplished as would be the case if he served the full term of his sentence. He only lacked five months of serving the full term. Recommended by the judge, district attorney, jury and state senator.

JOHN NEVERS.—Convicted before the circuit court of Polk county, June 20, 1884, of arson and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of three years. Pardon granted February 13, 1885, for the reason that the prisoner is a young man of good reputation; it was not shown positively that he committed the offense. The house burned was one of bad repute, and it is deemed by the judge, district attorney and many citizens of Polk county that the ends of justice have been amply satisfied.

JAMES GEORGE.—Convicted before the county court of Iowa county, Oct. 27, 1884, of embezzlement, and sentenced to state prison for a term of one year. Pardon granted April 14, 1885, for the reason that the general feeling among his neighbors seems to be that in his case the ends of justice have been already obtained. Pardon asked for by the judge, district attorney, members of county board and many citizens of Iowa county.

FRANCIS C. EVERETT.—Convicted before the circuit court of Sauk county, March 22, 1884, of polygamy; and sentenced to state prison for a term of two years. Pardoned April 14, 1885, for the reason that it appears there was no intent to commit crime. Pardon asked for by nearly the entire neighborhood where the prisoner resided.

HENRY ZIEGELMAIER.—Convicted before the county court for Grant county, May 23, 1883, of burglary and sentenced to state prison for a term of three years. Pardon granted April 29, 1885, for the reason that the boy was under sixteen years of age and should have been sentenced to the industrial school for boys instead of being confined in the penitentiary among hardened and confirmed criminals.

MICHAEL SAGSTETTER.—Convicted before the circuit court of Winnebago county, December 7, 1878, of murder, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison during his natural life. Pardon granted June 17, 1885, for the reason of his having served the maximum punishment allowed by the statute for the offense of which a majority of the jury first voted him guilty. His pardon was asked for by the judge, jury, district attorney, members of the Menasha and Neenah press, and many other citizens.

JEROME HASKINS.—Convicted before the county court of Portage county, on the 4th day of August, 1884, of larceny, and sentenced to state prison for a term of two years. Pardon granted June 27, 1885, for the reason that he was only sixteen years old and up to the commission of the crime was highly respected, and being induced to commit the offense by older and more guilty parties; it is believed he has been sufficiently punished. Pardon recommended by the judge, district attorney, state senator and member of assembly.

GEORGE WILSON.—Convicted before the circuit court for Milwaukee county on the 27th of October, 1865, of murder and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison during his natural life. Conditional pardon granted July 22, 1885, for the reason that new evidence was presented which, if produced at the trial, would have resulted in his conviction of a lesser crime. The pardon was made conditional upon his own request, as it had been reported that he had threatened, if he ever got out of prison, he would kill the district attorney and chief of police. Subsequently additional affidavits were filed showing that a man by the name of West, who at one time was an inmate of the prison, did the shooting. Upon this evidence I granted him an unconditional pardon. While I believe that Wilson did not do the shooting, yet I do not think him wholly guiltless.

PETER KINNEY.—Convicted before the circuit court of La Crosse county, May 11, 1885, of assault with intent to do great bodily harm, and sentenced to state prison for a term of one year. Pardon granted September 21, 1885, for the reason that the offense was committed under great provocation and he regretted it at once. The prisoner plead guilty after six month's imprisonment in jail. It is now thought he has been sufficiently punished.

FRANK SHEA.—Convicted before the circuit court of Dunn county, December 5, 1881, of murder, and sentenced to state prison for a term of fourteen years. Pardon granted September 22, 1885, for the reason that it is believed the prisoner is not guilty. The judge who tried him writes: "The more I think about this case the more I am convinced that it is a case calling for executive clemency, and such is the opinion of all who are conversant with the facts. In view of what I know now of the character of the witness, and the facts, I should, if I had the power, grant a new trial. * * * I am firmly convinced that no conviction would have been had but for such testimony, as there was not enough to convince the jury of his guilt aside from that; and I am now satisfied that her testimony was not true."

JAMES O'BRIEN.—Convicted before the circuit court of Walworth county, May 28, 1884, of assault with intent to do great bodily harm and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of two years. Pardon granted October 30, 1885. The prisoner was convicted with two others of bad character. His reputation had been good and it is claimed was led into this offense by the other parties. Under these circumstances it would seem his punishment had been ample.

THOMAS BOYLE.—Convicted before the circuit court of Columbia county, December 22, 1883, of manslaughter in the second degree and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for the term of five years. Pardon granted December 5th, 1885, for the reason that he was convicted upon expert testimony of physicians and it now appears from affidavits of physicians that they were in error and that death was caused by pneumonia. Pardon recommended by the jury, district attorney and a large number of citizens of Columbia county.

ALONZO AUSTIN.—Convicted before the circuit court of Juneau county, October 24, 1884, of rape, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of ten years. Pardoned December 9, 1885, for the reason that there are doubts of his having been guilty of the crime. The judge before whom he was tried writes: "I recommend pardon; should have made the sentence lighter could I have done so. Indeed, I had some doubts as to whether the party was guilty of the crime." Pardon recommended by the district attorney, a portion of the jury, the county board, county officers, village officers of Mauston and many other citizens of Juneau county.

J. L. SICKLES.—Convicted before the municipal court of Dane county, October 2, 1884, of forgery, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of two years. Pardon granted December 9, 1885, for the reason that it was represented that he was not of sound mind and should have been sent to an asylum rather than the penitentiary.

LAFAYETTE ENSOR.—Convicted before the circuit court of Green county, April 28, 1885, of larceny and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of two years. Pardon granted December 30, 1885, for the reason that the prisoner appears to be simple minded and was led into this act by more guilty parties. He served a term of three years at Joliet for the same offense and was turned over to the authorities of this state at the expiration of his term. He plead guilty and gave information which restored stolen horses to their owners. Recommended by all the officers in authority, including the judge, district attorney and jury.

EDWARD COFFIN.—Convicted before the circuit court of Winnebago county, November 19, 1884, of robbery and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of two years. Pardon granted January 6, 1886. The judge says: "This was the first crime I ever knew him to be charged with. Up to a short time before committing this offense the boy had an excellent character. He has friends of excellent standing in the city who say they will give him employment, and make a good respectable citizen of him, if a pardon is granted," and I have no doubt they will do so.

MARGARET M. COOLEY and REBECCA MERRITT.—Convicted before the municipal court of Dane county, May 20, 1885, of perjury, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of two years. Pardon granted February 5, 1886. This case presents peculiar and trying circumstances. Two women with infants in their arms, plead guilty of perjury in attempting to acquit their brothers-in-law. Their evidence, however, did not change the result, and it appears they did not realize the enormity of the offense. Pardon recommended by the judge who tried and the district attorney who prosecuted them, and many citizens of Baraboo.

JOHN D. MATHNEY.—Convicted before the circuit court of Fond du Lac county, December 27, 1884, of bigamy, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of two years. Pardon granted April 16, 1886, for the reason that the judge who tried him is now of the opinion that there was no intent to commit crime. Pardon recommended by the judge, district attorney and other county officers.

PAUL BARTHOL.—Convicted before the circuit court for Winnebago county, January 5th, 1882, of assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to rob, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of ten years. Pardon granted April 16, 1886, because of the youth of the boy, his good conduct since his imprisonment, and because it is believed he has been sufficiently punished to effect a lasting reform. Recommended by the judge, the complaining witness and the prosecuting attorney.

JOHN PATZEN.—Convicted before the municipal court for Milwaukee county, March 3d, 1883, of larceny of a horse and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of five years. Pardon granted April 17, 1886, because of his having served nearly his full term, and because of his former good conduct, he is released upon the recommendation of the district attorney and the entire community where he resided.

OLE THOMAS.—Convicted before the circuit court for Chippewa county, May 29, 1884, of murder in the third degree, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of seven years. Pardon granted June 21, 1886, for the reason that it appears the prisoner—an Indian—had not a full trial. The judge writes: "Had all the facts which might affect the question of his criminality been presented to the jury, he would have got off lighter, both as to verdict and sentence." * * * "I shall feel personally relieved in my own mind as to his case, if you will pardon him as soon as practicable. I feel that it is my duty, as a magistrate and citizen, to urge you to do so."

JOSEPH KENNEY.—Convicted before the circuit court for Wood county, December 17, 1885, of burglary, and sentenced to imprisonment in the state prison for a term of one year and six months. Pardon granted June 21, 1886, for the reason that it is shown he is now and was at the time of his conviction partially insane. Recommended by the judge, district attorney and many citizens of Wood county.

CHARLES CARTER.—Convicted before the circuit court of Monroe county, October 8, 1884, of manslaughter in the third degree, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for a term of three years. Pardoned July 19, 1886, for the reason that it is believed the law has been amply vindicated and the convict sufficiently punished by the imprisonment already endured.

JOHN DUNKLEY.—Convicted before the circuit court for Polk county, June 20, 1884, of arson and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison, for a term of three years. Pardoned September 18, 1886, for the reason that it was not shown positively that he was guilty. The building burned was a house of bad repute, and it is deemed the demands of justice have been satisfied. Pardon recommended by the judge, district attorney, jury and many officers and citizens of Polk county.

GEORGE FREDERICK.—Convicted before the circuit court of Green county, March 4, 1886, of aiding prisoner to escape, and sentenced to imprisonment in state prison for two years. Pardon granted September 18, 1886, for the reason that it appears the prisoner is not naturally bad, and being weak minded, his affection for his brother induced him to commit the offense.

PETER HAYES.—Convicted before the circuit court for Douglas county, July 2, 1884, of attempt to rape, and sentenced to imprisonment in the state prison for five years. Pardon granted Nov. 9, 1886, for the reason that new evidence has come to light which satisfies the judge, district attorney and jury that he is not guilty.

MILWAUKEE COUNTY HOUSE OF CORRECTION.

JOHN F. PUDHAM.—Convicted before the municipal court, of Milwaukee county, August 9, 1884, of forgery and sentenced to the house of correction for a term of three years. Pardoned March 5, 1885, because of his failing health. Under the circumstances he seems to have endured sufficient punishment. Pardon recommended by a large number of residents of Milwaukee.

CHARLES TOEUNISEN.—Convicted before the municipal court of Milwaukee, October 25, 1885, of vagrancy and sentenced to imprisonment in the house of correction for a term of 90 days. Pardon granted December 5, 1885, for the reason that remunerative employment was awaiting his release. Pardon recommended by the municipal judge.

ROBERT KLOETZER.—Convicted before the municipal court of Milwaukee county, November 18, 1885, of assault, and sentenced to imprisonment in the house of correction for a term of six months. Pardoned December 21, 1885. The prisoner was prosecuted with another party for the same offense, and it is shown that he took no part in the assault. Pardon recommended by the district attorney and other citizens of Milwaukee.

HARRY CHAMBERLAIN.—Convicted before the municipal court of Milwaukee county, October 15, 1885, of enticing a female under sixteen years of age from her home for the purpose of seduction, and sentenced to imprisonment in the house of correction for a term of one year and six months. Pardoned June 8, 1886, for the reason that it is very doubtful if he committed the affair.

ANDREW DOLAN.—Convicted before the municipal court of Milwaukee county, October 17, 1885, of burglary, and sentenced to imprisonment in the house of correction for a term of three years. Pardoned December 16, 1886, upon the recommendation of nine jurors and the district attorney, for the reason that his punishment has been sufficient.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION.

Executive Chamber,

MADISON, March 1, 1887.

To the Honorable, the Legislature:

I have the honor to transmit herewith a communication from the president of the State Board of Supervision, in relation to the capacity of the Wisconsin state prison. In view of the fact that there has been no increase in the population of the prison the last year, and the uncertainty as to what disposition will be made of the labor of the convicts, I would recommend that no provision be made for the construction of an additional prison.

J. M. RUSK,
Governor.

MADISON, Wis., February 25, 1887.

To His Excellency, JEREMIAH M. RUSK, Governor:

A careful examination of the state prison shows that there are 488 single cells and 16 double cells, making the capacity of the male portion of the prison, excluding 6 double cells needed for invalids, 503. On the 13th day of February, 1887, the male population of the prison was 442. There has been no increase in the population since March 30, 1885, the number at that time being the same as on the 18th instant, while the increase since March 30, 1884, has been only 44, and as there is ample room for an increase of at least 66, the probabilities are that the prison is in a condition to maintain any increase that may take place during the next four or five years.

Very respectfully, your obedient servant,
CHARLES LULING,
President.

So ordered.

MINORITY REPORT OF JUDICIARY COMMITTEE ON BILL NO. 67, S., RELATING TO AN APPROPRIA- TION TO LORENZO SACKETT.

It is undisputed that the charter under which the road in question was operated in 1862, was repealed by the legislature.

It is shown by affidavits of many of the leading citizens of Milwaukee city and county now living, that the franchise was worth at least $10,000 at the time it was taken away from the petitioner, and that such was its value is not denied, and that the petitioner had no notice or knowledge of the scheme to strip him of his property, until the same had become an accomplished fact.

It is not denied that no investigation of the facts was had, prior to the repeal of the charter, and no provisions made for compensating the petitioner for his property so taken from him by the state.

Such conduct on the part of the agents of the state is contrary to all our notions of justice, and to the recognized principles under which every citizen of the state may be said to hold and own property.

It is true that the petitioner received $2,000 in 1865, but it cannot be claimed that this was in any sense adequate compensation therefor. It is a recognition of the justice of the claim, by a payment of a part thereof.

We are unable to see any answer to the claim made by the petitioner, that he ought to have reasonable compensation for the property taken from him without right and without notice, and to this extent we endorse the claim.

The objection that for the state now to pay Mr. Sackett some adequate compensation for the great injury it did him, so long ago, would be to establish a bad precedent, we deem of little weight. We believe that each individual case of this character should stand or fall upon its own merits, and we are unable to perceive how the payment of any just claim can ever furnish a bad precedent.

We cannot comprehend how it is ever too late for an honest man to right his own wrong, if within his power to do so, nor how it shall ever be too late for the state of Wisconsin to make ample reparation for the great injury it did to Lorenzo Sackett.

We therefore recommend that an appropriation of $5,000 be appropriated to Mr. Sackett.

No. 10, S.,

A bill authorizing and directing the governor to have placed in the old hall of the house of representatives at Washington, a statue of Pere Marquette,
Was taken up.

Senator Ginty spoke as follows:

Some time since, my old friend, Gen. Hobart, suggested that as Wisconsin was entitled to two statues in the hall of the House of Representatives at our national capitol, one ought to be placed there in honor of Pere Marquette, the explorer, the missionary; and the more I thought of the subject the more I became impressed with the justice of it.

The result of that consideration is bill No. 10, S., which I had the honor to introduce, and which has received a unanimous report from the committee on State affairs, and also from the committee on Claims.

The years are rapidly marching by, Mr. President; so rapidly that events which at the first thought seem but as of yesterday, yet we are forced to glance over the pages of history for the record. Grant and Logan were with us a short time ago; to-day we read of them and their deeds in books. The beardless boys that crowded the ranks of twenty-five years ago, sleep in the waving grasses on Southern soil, or move amongst the grey beards at home. They left a record of patriotism and devotion to the country which will endure long after the hillock that marks their last resting place is leveled. They who follow out the path of Duty, whether it takes the form of a sacrifice to Mars, or the devotion of a life to improve the condition of their fellow men, have this to think of: that those who come after, though they may “forget the singer,

They will not forget the song.”

No man can study the career of Pere Marquette without feeling that if ever an unselfish man walked the earth, it was the missionary who planted the cross on the shores of Lake Superior in the latter half of the sixteenth century.

Of Marquette, to whom the bill proposes to erect a statue, it is proper to make a brief biographical sketch. He belonged to one of those glorious old French families of Laon, whose sons divided between the army and the church — one half donning the humble garments of the Jesuit missionary, while the others sought glory in the dazzling wars of France, midst the clash of arms and the din of battle.

James Marquette in 1654, entered the church, and after studying for twelve years, expressed a desire to share the hardships and privations of a missionary to America. Landing at Quebec, he was soon after assigned to duty among the Indians on the shores of the great lake, where he devoted his time to learning the different languages of the tribes, and becoming acquainted with them. We hear of him in 1669, at La Pointe, in this state, and the journals of his life and work there are among the very interesting annals found in our excellent State Historical Society. The roof of the church where he erected his altar was often frescoed with the blue of the sky and the stars of heaven. His cathedral walls were the stately pines in the great forest; the incense came from the fragrant fern and flowers wild; the trembling notes of the organ were supplanted by the carol of birds. No bell rang out its chimes to call to sermon and to prayer; and that humble Jesuit priest needed not a costly beretta or golden vestments, to proclaim him Nature's cardinal.

And without presuming to criticise, I am not certain but that the plain and unpretending places of worship in the early western days, were more appropriate to do homage to a meek and lowly Savior, than the gaudy, extravagantly furnished, half-million religious club houses in the large cities of to-day — places where the riches of the Orient blend in Fashions urn with the perfumes of Araby.

While engaged in his work at La Pointe, he had written several letters to his superior at Quebec, regarding explorations of the country; and in 1673, Count Fontenac, the Governor of Canada, desired him to find the "Great river" — traditions of which had come through Indian sources — and with the Sieur Joliet, he started on his journey to find the Mississippi, its source, and where it emptied. Proceeding in canoes, he skirted the shores of the lakes and entered Green Bay — then generally known as the Bay of Pauns — stopping at Menomonee to hold religious services among the Indians. The spot where Green Bay now stands was the farthest country known. Here he remained a short time, and met Allouez, who had established a mission. But the ardent desire to accomplish the work would not let him remain long, and he went up the Fox river, into Lake Winnebago, camping where the city of Oshkosh now stands, and where there was a large gathering of Indians. They urged him not to proceed farther; told him of the strange tribes he would meet, and that danger would be found at every step. More determined than ever, he proceeded on his way up the Fox and Wisconsin, until he reached the spot where the latter river empties into the Wisconsin, and where Prairie du Chien now stands. Descending the great stream, he proceeded as far as the Arkansas, until stopped by hostile Spaniards, when he returned as far as the Illinois river, and following that, reached Lake Michigan. The trip was replete with dangers. At almost every step, there were hostile Indians, whose language he knew not. Three months were consumed in making the journey, and 2,549 miles traversed. Maps of his discoveries, from Green Bay to the Arkansas, and through Illinois, were made by him and sent to France. They were the first ever drawn.

The exposures he had been subjected to since entering upon his Lake Superior mission was beginning to be felt, and he was prostrated at the close of his last trip for a long while. It is unnecessary to go into the details of his subsequent work; hours could be consumed in the recital.

Two years after this, we find him with two Frenchmen, trying to reach Mackinac. They started in canoes from where Chicago now stands and followed the eastern shores of Lake Michigan. Marquette was completely prostrated and had to be carried ashore at night. When the river about opposite Milwaukee was reached, he felt that the spirit within him was slowly preparing for flight. Calling his attendants around, he bade them hold up the crucifix, so that the last object his eyes could see would be the cross — the symbol of a Savior and a religion he loved. His faith in the future was so strong that in bidding farewell to his faithful companions on that lonely stream, it seemed to say:

—“give little warning,
Choose thine own time;
Say not ‘Good Night,’ but in some brighter clime
Bid me ‘Good Morning.’ ”

Wrapped up in cedar bark, the body was buried by the side of the stream—the rippling water singing his requiem, and the river named after him.

* * * * *

I have said that the river upon whose banks the life of the tired explorer ebbed out, and where his devoted companions buried him with the cross above his grave, was named after him. and the village that grew up was called Pere Marquette.

That is true. But the greed for gold in this fair world of ours, brings also a disposition to elbow patient merit and well won fame aside, to make room for the vulgar swagger of the parvenu, grown insolent from the flush of easily acquired wealth. And so, one day, the sponge of influence wiped the name of Pere Marquette from the map, and that of Ludington appeared in its stead.

Great God! Mr. President; just think of the distance from the towering heights of a Marquette — to Ludington! — from “Hyperion to a Satyr.”

* * * * *

The pages of history are replete with the knight errantry of the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries, where men drenched the fields of Palestine with blood, in the endeavor to replace the crescent with the cross.

How different with Marquette three centuries later! Burning with an ardent desire to spread among the untutored children of the forest the teachings of a Savior, and to make discoveries of rivers and countries in a new world, he used the lessons of love to change the pagan belief of the Indian into that Faith which brings content and peace to Christian hearts; while his explorations were carried on with an energy far beyond his physical power. Civilization and religion, it is said, go hand in hand, and while the cross is established, the land grows plethoric with golden sheaves, and the sunlight drives away the damp and dews of darkness.

In speaking of the work accomplished by Marquette, a historian truly says:

“No voyage so important has since been undertaken; no results so great have ever been produced by so feeble an expedition. The discoveries of Marquette, followed by the enterprises of La Salle and his successors, have influenced the destinies of nations; and passing over all political speculations, this exploration first threw open a valley of greater extent, fertility, and commercial advantages than any other in the world.”

“The people of the West will build his monument,” says the great historian Bancroft, in Vol. 3, of the History of the United States.

Let us commence the work now. Let it go as the tribute of the West, not only to the faithful Marquette, but as a salute to the tri-color of France, and a reminder that at least Wisconsin is not forgetful of the country that sent a La-Fayette and an army to help achieve the independence of the United States—an army that contained three Marquettes, who laid down their lives as a sacrifice to the cause of liberty, as their relative did for Christianity and civilization. It will be some return to the compliment Bartholdi paid in presenting to this government the statue of Liberty which adorns New York harbor. Let it also be a reminder that Wisconsin owes much to its early pioneers—nine-tenths of whom were French. “They penetrated where even the sword of the conqueror could not cleave his way.” They were the first on the rivers; it was their ax that first echoed in the woods, where the preparatory step was made in converting the pine into lumber that encased comfortable homes. That nationality is not strong enough to stand at the door of political state conventions and demand recognition; their habitations are usually away from the great cities; but it affords me great pleasure and satisfaction to stand here and pay them even this humble tribute to their worth and what they have done.

The motto of our noble commonwealth is “Forward.” Let us be so in recognizing the merits of Marquette—the first in carrying out Bancroft’s prophecy. Let us halt in the hurrying march of life; in the fierce strife for wealth and position; and looking back two centuries at Marquette the man—Marquette the explorer—Marquette the voyageur missionary—let us point to him as one of the “—few, the immortal names,

That were not born to die.”

* * * * *

Mr. President, when we draw aside the faded portieres of the past—broidered as they are with heroes of history, and outlined with the flowers of tradition—and gaze into the vaulted chambers of the departed years, we see his face. We find many there who have been an honor to the west—men who were true to their manhood in times of trial; men whose intellects sparkled, diamond like, amidst their fellow beings; men of dauntless integrity; men who offered their lives for their country; but away beyond all these, shining through the filmy mists of ages, comes Pere Marquette.

“He fought the good fight;” “They kept the faith.”

Let us place him where he belongs, with the heroes of America, that our children, and our children’s children, may give honor to the explorer, the patriot, the apostle.

The bill was then ordered engrossed and read a third time.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION.

STATE OF WISCONSIN,

Executive Department,

MADISON, April 11, 1887.

To the Honorable, the Senate:

I return herewith, without approval, bill No. 214, S., entitled, an act to amend section 4589, of chapter 186, of the revised statutes of the state of Wisconsin, entitled "of offenses against chastity, morality and decency,"

This bill, with a single exception, is identical in its provisions with bill No. 183, A., which was approved March 23, 1887, and is now known as chapter 116, laws of 1887. The exception referred to is a decrease in the amount of fine to be imposed for its violation.

I presume it was not the intention of the legislature to pass two bills so nearly alike in their provisions, and I therefore return this bill without approval.

J. M. RUSK,
Governor.

The question being, shall the bill pass, notwithstanding the objections of his excellency, the governor,

The ayes and noes being required, it was decided in the negative; ayes, none; noes, 28; not voting, 5.

The vote was as follows:

Ayes—none.

Noes—Senators Buckstaff, Carey, Cooper, DeGroff, Dyson, Erwin, Fitch, Fritz, Ginty, Greene, Hoyt, Hulburt, James, Kidd, Klotz, Leahy, Lins, Lovejoy, Maxwell, Merrill, Nason, Pettibone, Pond, Scofield Waddington, Ware, Wechselberg and Widule—28.

Not voting—Senators Conklin, Day, Kennedy, Lochen and Rust—5.

STATE OF WISCONSIN,
Executive Department,
MADISON, April 11, 1887.

To the Honorable, the Senate:

I return herewith, without approval, bill No. 71, S., entitled "an act to authorize the commissioners of the public lands of the state of Wisconsin, to loan a portion of the trust funds of the state, to companies F and B, second regiment, Wisconsin National Guard of the city of Oshkosh, for the purpose of constructing and maintaining an arsenal and armory."

This bill provides for a loan of $15,000 from the trust funds of the state, to two of the companies of the Wisconsin National Guard, and only requires of these companies that they have a lot of ground of sufficient size on which to erect an armory. Whenever, upon an inspection, the membership of a military company is shown to be under the minimum required by law, it can be mustered out of the National Guard. The trust funds, in such an event, would have as security, a property suitable for an armory, but of little value for any other use.

If this bill is to become a law, I see no good reason why all of the companies of the National Guard should not be provided for in a like manner. They would all, no doubt, be glad to avail themselves of the privilege of borrowing money at four per cent. interest to erect an armory under the same conditions, while the school districts of the state are compelled by law to pay seven per cent. interest, pledging the faith of the district and all of their property therein to the payment of the loan.

The laws of the state relating to the investment of the trust funds do not contemplate loans of the class provided for by this bill. The trust funds of the state should never be diverted from the class of investments named in section 258, revised statutes, as amended by chapter 167 of the laws of 1881, and chapter 82 of the laws of 1881. In my judgment these funds should be held sacred to the purposes for which they were created, by investing only in the best class of securities as named in the law, viz.: the bonds of certain states of the United States, and of the cities, towns, counties and school districts of the state. While the legislature, no doubt, has the right to make especial provisions for the manner in which these funds may be loaned, it would seem to be unwise to invest in a class of securities which would not be taken by individuals seeking safe investments.

The whole people of the state are vitally interested in the investment of these funds. The proceeds arising from these loans are used solely for educational purposes, and our splendid system of schools are the result of a wise management pursued for a long term of years. At one time, since the formation of the state government, through unwise and reckless management, a large amount of money was lost to these funds by loans to individuals on real estate mortgages. It was found that this was a dangerous mode of investment, and the legislature wisely repealed the law permitting this class of loans.

The commissioners of the public lands fully concur in the opinion that the bill ought not to become a law.

J. M. RUSK,
Governor.

COMMUNICATION TO THE LEGISLATURE.

To the honorable, the legislature of the state of Wisconsin:

Your committee, appointed under joint resolution No. 21, Senate, to investigate as to the purposes for, and the manner in which, the moneys appropriated by chapter 332, of the laws of 1885, providing for the erection of science hall and other buildings, have been expended, and as to the necessity, if any, which existed for the additional appropriation called for by bill 137, A., to complete said buildings, has finished its labors, in so far as it has been able, within the time limited by the resolution, and respectfully reports as follows:

The work of your committee has been performed under circumstances of great difficulty. The fact that it was appointed during the latter part of the session, when important bills have been up for consideration in committee, and on their passage in the respective houses, in many of which bills the members of your committee have themselves been deeply interested, together with the fact of the enforced absence from many of its meetings, of two of its members (one from sickness), and the further fact of the very intricate nature of the inquiry it was prosecuting, has made it impossible for your committee, in any proper sense to complete its labors in the manner contemplated by the resolution and within the time fixed thereby. Some idea of the difficulty attendant upon this investigation, may be gathered from the testimony relative to the books of the secretary of the board of regents (page 38), given by the secretary himself, though its introduction here may be a little irregular:

Q. Are your entries made from slips?

A. They are made from the vouchers.

Q. Onto this book?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. That is a book of original entry?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is this all the book you have kept in connection with them you say?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. How did you know when an account was finally settled?

A. I only knew as I kept track of it.

Q. Picked out the items?

A. Yes, sir.

And from the following extracts from the testimony (beginning page 608) of G. L. Marchand, of Chicago, who comes to the committee recommended as an expert of the first rank, by one of the leading law firms of that city.

Q. You are an expert accountant by profession?

A. That is my business.

Q. Have you examined the books of the board of regents at the request of the committee?

A. I have examined what few books they have, but principally the papers.

Q. What do you say generally as to the books which you found there; were they books?

A. I found no regular books; more memoranda than anything else. Not a regular set of books at all.

Q. Was there any way that from those books you could tell the condition of any fund, except by the computation of items yourself?

A. No, sir.

Q. Had there been any balances struck?

A. None that I saw.

Q. Was there any way that you could tell, from the books, as to what their indebtedness consisted of?

A. No.

Q. How ought books like that to be kept; * * books in an institution spending so much money?

A. I think books of that sort, in order to be clear and definite, should be kept in double entry, and a balance sheet made once a month, showing all balances owing by the university and what is due it and what funds are on hand, and in whose hands they are.

Q. Is there anything of that kind?

A. I have never seen anything of that sort.

Q. In any of these books?

A. I see no record of anything of that sort.

Q. Was there anything by which any man, whether connected with the university or not, could tell, from an inspection of the books, anything as to the financial condition of the university?

A. I think not.

* * * * *

Q. In looking through those memoranda, was there any way that you could definitely tell to what to debit or credit—I mean to what fund to debit or credit any certain item?

A. Not excepting from the endorsement on the vouchers, subdividing the disbursements.

Q. And if any one wanted to find out what stood to the credit of any fund, he would have to go through the whole list of vouchers, would he?

A. He would have to go through the list of vouchers to find out how much was allowed for a special purpose, and take the difference.

Q. The receipts and resources are represented to have been, you say, * * * From February, 1885, to March 1st, 1887, embracing the time of this examination, $261,000?

A. Yes, sir. And that consists of the following items:

Insurance policies on loss	$ 41,000 00
Appropriation, chap. 882, session 1885	190,000 00
Loan from State Bank, Madison, 6 per cent.	15,000 00
Loan from First National Bank, 6 per cent.	15,000 00

Making $261,000 00

This does not include anything in the way of tuition fees or anything of that sort. That only applies to those four funds; has nothing to do with the general endowment or any receipts from the endowment or any other source which they may receive money from.

* * * * *

Q. You have, then, simply examined relating to the appropriation and the moneys borrowed?

A. Relating to the moneys spent on the new buildings erected since the fire.

Q. You say you have examined the payments and receipts applying to the buildings and contracts, and find all amounts properly certified and receipted for and ordered paid, except as per folios 8, 9, 10 and 11?

A. Attached to the report in your hand.

Q. This list that appears on folios 8, 9, 10 and 11 — were they not certified?

A. Some of them are not certified; some not ordered paid. They specify in each instance as you will see. Some of them are not certified and some of them were certified but not ordered paid, and some of them were not receipted for.

* * * * *

Q. Let me see if I understand this? (showing witness paper.)

A. Oh, that was not certified.

Q. Voucher 354.

A. It was not certified, and was not ordered paid, but still it was paid.

Q. So it was paid then, without any certificate or order to have it paid?

A. Anything of that sort being on record.

* * * * *

Q. Voucher 262 is "not certified." "Payment on account." "No order to pay?"

A. That was a partial payment as near as I recollect, on some contract work, for some $500 or $600. May be a thousand dollars.

Q. Here voucher 337 is certified and "no receipt on file."

A. Yes, sir; that is in one or two instances.

Q. Was it paid?

A. It was paid, but there is no receipt on file to show.

Q. Is there anything there to show that it has been paid except the entry?

A. The entry and the order. That is to say, the warrant had been drawn for the payment of it. That is the only entry I have seen.

Q. But there is nothing on the books to show?

A. Nothing on the books to show.

* * * * *

Q. Voucher 489 is marked "certified," and "ordered paid." Was it paid?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. But no receipt on file?

A. No receipt on file. Those items are all included in the disbursements and have been paid, but under those conditions.

* * * * *

Q. Is that so, that from the books you couldn't find—from an inspection of the books themselves you couldn't tell what was drawn against that fund? (referring to the $41,000 derived from the policies of insurance on old science hall, in force at the time of the fire in December, 1884).

A. No you can't tell. There has been other apparatus bought and it has been charged against other departments.

Q. (Reading from expert's report). It appears to be the case, however, that this $41,000 fund or so much thereof as has been used, has been spent only for the purchase of furniture and apparatus, as was ordered by the board of regents, including freight in some cases, and labor where such furniture was manufactured on university premises, and to order. How did you ascertain that fact? From the secretary?

A. From the secretary and from memoranda on the various vouchers.

Q. (Reading from report). Of this fund there has been spent, as per items in exhibit A, the sum of $35,804.03, leaving the sum of $5,195.97 on hand. * * * Now as a matter of fact there is no balance on hand, is there, although the books show it?

A. I am informed that the entire treasurer's account is overdrawn.

Q. How did you ascertain that?

A. Merely a matter of information; that's all.

Q. Do the books themselves show that there is a balance in his hands?

A. The vouchers show, on condition that the $41,000 should be applied to the purchase of apparatus alone, that there should be about $5,000 of that fund on hand.

Q. If the books show that there should be $5,000 of that fund on hand, and as a matter of fact it is not on hand, it has been spent for some other purpose, hasn't it?

A. Probably so.

Q. It must be so, mustn't it?

A. Well yes. The money has been acknowledged received from all I can find out, and there hasn't been that much expended, so the balance must be on hand.

Q. And, if it is not on hand, it must have been spent for something else?

A. Yes, sir.

* * * * *

Q. Now take the appropriation fund of 1885. It was $190,000. From the books, what is shown to be on hand?

A. Out of the appropriation of $190,000, there should be $102.36 on hand.

Q. That is what would appear by the books?

A. That would appear from the papers and books.

Q. As a matter of fact, is there that amount to the credit of that fund?

A. It appears not.

Q. And if that account is overdrawn, or they have contracted an indebtedness of $30,000 this balance must have been spent for some other purpose, mustn't it?

A. Very likely.

Q. So then as a matter of fact, the books there don't show an accurate idea; wouldn't give a person an accurate idea of the state of the university fund, would it?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or of the appropriation fund?

A. No, sir.

Q. Or of the insurance fund?

A. No, sir.

Q. In other words, a person who would look at those books and not go anywhere else, would be entirely misinformed as to the actual condition of the finances of the university?

A. He could form no estimate of the university fund at all, from the books.

* * * * *

Q. Were there separate personal accounts kept in those books?

A. No.

Q. How did you determine what the account of A. D. Conover was?

A. From his receipt on file; the warrants that were drawn in his favor for personal use.

Q. So in order to know how any personal account stood, you had to go through the vouchers and receipts?

A. That is the only way I have determined any of the accounts there.

With the exception of a portion of the examination of one witness, Prof. Conover (which for reasons satisfactory to a majority of the committee, was conducted in private), all sessions of the committee have been open to the general public, and have been attended by the special stenographer of the board of regents, and also by one or more members of that body, who were permitted to interrogate witnesses as they desired. Your committee makes mention of this matter, in view of the denunciation to which it was subjected in certain quarters, early in the investigation, because, as was alleged, its "star chamber" and "Spanish inquisitorial" methods would prevent the press from publishing the evidence, verbatim, day by day, as it much desired to do. Although every opportunity therefor has been afforded, there has been no publication of the evidence; a fact which necessitates, and will suffice to explain, the frequent quotations from the official record of the testimony which appear in this report. From the outset, no member of your committee was desirous of having the entire investigation conducted in secret, and with the exception above mentioned, it has not been.

The taking of testimony was concluded on the afternoon of Friday, April 8, at which time members of the board of regents announced that there were no other witnesses whom they desired to have sworn. All witnesses gave their evidence under oath, and sufficient was taken and is herewith submitted, to warrant your committee in making the following statement of facts, and their recommendation based thereon:

In 1875, the legislature appropriated $80,000 for the erection of a building for the university, to be called science hall. The building was constructed for a little less than the appropriation, and when completed contained four floors, each divided into two approximately equal parts, making eight equal parts for the whole building. In the month of December, in the year 1884, that building was destroyed by fire. Soon after the fire, the regents began to consult among themselves and with Mr. Koch, an architect residing in the city of Milwaukee, and with Prof. Conover of the university in relation to plans for a new structure to replace the one which had been burned. As a result of these various conferences, it was decided to erect five separate buildings, namely: (1) science hall; (2) a machine shop; (3) a chemical laboratory; (4) a boiler house; (5) a gymnasium. The science hall which was burned, included within itself, the chemical laboratory, machine shop and boiler house; so that in point of fact the regents decided to erect four separate buildings to accommodate the same departments which had previously been quartered in one, and in addition thereto, to build a gymnasium. Accordingly, a duly appointed committee of its members came before the joint committee on Claims of the legislature of 1885, and asked it to appropriate the following sums:

For science hall, machine shop and boiler house.....	$150,000
For chemical laboratory.....	80,000
For gymnasium.....	40,000
For heating apparatus for all the buildings.....	25,000

The legislature refused to make any appropriation for a gymnasium, but at once passed a law (ch. 332, laws of 1885) to provide for the restoration of science hall and the erection of a boiler house, machine shop and laboratory desired by the regents. The full text of said chapter 332 is as follows:

AN ACT relating to the university, providing for building science hall and other buildings, and making appropriations therefor.

The people of the state of Wisconsin, represented in senate and assembly, do enact as follows:

Section 1. The regents of the university are authorized and required, at the earliest practical time, to secure suita-able plans for the erection of an adequate and convenient edifice in place of the science hall recently destroyed by fire, and also a proper building for a machine and carpenter shop, and the necessary engine, and for steam boilers for heating the buildings mentioned in this act; and also a separate edifice for the chemical department, containing suitable lecture rooms, laboratories for assaying and for qualitative and quantitative analysis, and other convenient rooms; and to proceed with the construction of such buildings upon the grounds of the university, with as much diligence as may consist with the proper performance of the work. All such buildings shall be built with a view to their being substantially fire-proof.

Section 2. For the purpose mentioned in the first section, there is hereby appropriated from the general fund, so much as shall be necessary, not exceeding the several sums respectively following: For the science hall, machine and carpenter shop, boiler house and engine, $150,000; for the building for the chemical department, $20,000; provided not more than $100,000 thereof shall be drawn from the treasury during the year 1885, and the residue during the year 1886.

Section 3. The said regents are also authorized and required to procure the necessary equipment, apparatus, cabinets and means of illustration and instruction, to properly furnish and equip such buildings, so far as may be done with the moneys received or to be received for insurance on the property which has been destroyed, which they are hereby authorized to expend therefor.

Section 4. This act shall take effect upon its passage.

Approved April 7, 1885.

Not taking into account the matter of the gymnasium, for which the legislature refused to make an appropriation, it is plain that by this act, there was appropriated out of the general fund, to erect the four buildings in question, only ten thousand dollars less than was demanded for that purpose, and that only five thousand dollars less was appropriated to furnish heating apparatus for these four buildings, than was demanded to provide the same for five. And from the evidence it is equally plain that among the members of the joint committee on Claims and of the legislature generally, it was the distinct understanding, based on the assurances of members of the board of regents themselves, that the appropriations were ample for the purposes mentioned, and that so far as the general fund was concerned, the regents were limited, for building and heating purposes, to the $190,000 appropriated by said act. The testimony of Hon. Hugh Ryan and Senator E. I. Kidd, both of whom voted for the appropriation, is explicit and convincing on these points. And yet, notwithstanding these assurances and that understanding, and despite the language of section 2 of said act, to-wit: "For the purpose mentioned in the first section, there is hereby appropriated from the general fund, so much as shall be necessary, not exceeding the several sums," (naming them), the evidence clearly shows that at no time after the appropriation was made, did the building committee of the board of regents seriously attempt to procure plans for buildings, or for any single building, which could reasonably be erected within the amount appropriated therefor. Mr. E. W. Keyes, chairman of the building committee, in his testimony (page 263) says:

We have always thought that we had the power under the statute, under the authority conferred upon us, to go on with the work and plan the buildings as seem necessary to us for the present and future needs of the university; that we were not tied down to an appropriation made by the legislature; that we were not compelled, in the exercise of our duty, to cut our garment according to the cloth which the legislature, in these appropriations, furnished us.

Again says the same witness (page 265):

I said that the board of regents thought they had the power, if in their judgment it was necessary, to arrange for a larger expenditure than that appropriation called for; that we were not restricted to it.

Q. How did you expect the building to be paid for, then?

A. Well, we expected that in the great liberality of the legislature of this state that it was quite probable that they would make an additional appropriation, etc.

These views of Chairman Keyes are substantially those of Mr. G. H. Paul, president of the board, as appears from the record of his testimony, on file with this report.

Holding this theory of their power in the premises, and after the return of Prof. Conover, whom they had sent to inspect buildings of eastern colleges, the building committee caused detailed plans of the chemical laboratory, machine shop and boiler house, to be prepared, and in June, 1885, bids were received by them for the construction of these buildings, from several well-known builders, ranging from $74,958, to the bid of John Trumbull, $55,000, which was the lowest, and was accepted. These buildings have been completed (with the exception of plumbing and gas fitting, for which an additional appropriation is asked) and accepted, at a total cost of $61,203.49.

During the summer of 1885 the plans for science hall were made in detail. The evidence is conclusive that the matter of the probable cost of the proposed new buildings, was purely a matter of guess-work with the building committee; that until some time after the legislature adjourned, nothing but "sketch plans" had been submitted to the board of regents, that the specifications had not been made, and that no serious effort to make an accurate detailed estimate in full of the probable cost of the buildings, was ever made at any one time by those having immediate charge of the work for the university. On that point says Prof. Conover (page 83):

Q. Did you sit down with the members of the executive board or with the board of regents or either of them, and try to figure accurately and concisely, to determine whether those buildings could be built for the money which the legislature had appropriated for the purpose of building them?

A. No, sir. I had no duty of that sort imposed upon me or suggested to me.

Q. Do you know that any person performed any duty of that kind?

A. No, sir; I do not.

Q. You never were present at any meeting when anything of that kind was attempted to be done?

A. No, sir; I was not.

Q. You don't know of your own knowledge, of any meeting having been held for that purpose?

A. No, sir; I do not.

The testimony of President Bascom, of the university, is to the general effect that there was no present necessity for the erection of a building so large and expensive as the science hall now in process of construction; that a building one story less in height, but of much less expensive construction, would have sufficed, together with the available room in the north dormitory, and with the laboratory, machine shop and boilers in separate buildings, to have abundantly accommodated the university; and he so advised the building committee, whose views upon this subject, however, did not coincide with his.

Bids for the construction of science hall were not opened until September 1, 1885, and ranged from the highest $229,283, down to $178,860. These bids were all rejected by the building committee, which committee determined to take the matter into its own hands, and to erect science hall by hiring men to do the work upon it by the day. When it was supposed that the buildings would be let by contract to the lowest bidder, the building committee had employed Professor Conover to act as superintendent of the work, at a salary of $2,500; and after the change whereby the building was to be erected by day work, he was retained as superintendent at the same compensation. Up to the time he gave his testimony, he had received the whole sum due him upon said salary excepting about $100 thereof, besides full pay of $2,000 a year as professor in the university. He was also employed at a salary of $1,500, as superintendent of the construction of the Dane county court house which was built by contract, during the same time that science hall has been in process of construction. Out of his salary as superintendent of construction of the university buildings, he has, for a portion of the time, paid his assistants. Besides his salary as superintendent of construction of Science Hall, the Professor has received for his services as engineer on that building, the sum of $425, and traveling expenses amounting to $538.84. In addition to these, he now has a claim against the university for about $800, for engineering services in connection with those buildings. In addition to his duties as superintendent, Prof. Conover hired all of the men employed on science hall, bought all of the material, made all contracts for the same, and signed all vouchers, while the evidence shows that prior to the erection of the aforesaid buildings, Prof. Conover had had no practical experience in the discharge of duties so varied and complicated, and of such character as those he was now called upon to perform.

Work was begun upon science hall about the 1st of October, 1885. Mr. Parmen, a young man of about 22 years, who graduated at the university in June, 1885, acted as the assistant superintendent of construction of that building, from the time it was begun until work closed down in January of 1887, and was on the regular pay roll first at $55 and then at $75 a month, except during the short time that he was paid by Prof. Conover. Mr. Holt, a young man about 23 years of age and a graduate in the same class with Mr. Parmen, acted as foreman of construction of buildings on the Trumbull contract during the absence of Prof. Conover. As to the prior experience of these two young men in the performance of duties such as those in which they were now engaged, the testimony of Prof. Conover (page 22), is as follows:

Q. Had these two boys, or men, ever had any experience in superintending the construction of buildings, to your knowledge, prior to June, 1885?

A. No, sir. I am positive they had not, because they had been students under my charge four years, and I knew their history very well.

Q. I would like to know the necessity for this additional superintendent; in what capacity was he (Mr. Parmen) employed there?

A. He was foreman of the work. He had responsible charge of the work. If I was not there and he needed more men, he hired men.

Q. So then, during your absence, this man had full charge of the work.

A. Yes, sir.

After October, 1885, the construction of science hall proceeded under the direction of Prof. Conover. Here it is proper to notice a resolution adopted by the board of regents June 24, 1885.

Resolved, That no member of the faculty or other employe of the university shall be at liberty to absent himself from the discharge of his duties in the university, without securing the previous consent of the executive committee, expressed in writing, and forfeiting all compensation for the period of absence. And no professor or other em ploye shall attend to any other business than that of discharging his duties in the university.

Another resolution of the board, of the same date, is as follows:

Resolved, That it is the duty of the professors and instructors of the university to devote their time and attention to the duties of their several departments in the university, without other employment for compensation, which would in any way interfere with their obligations to the university.

It does not appear by the records of the board, that these resolutions were ever rescinded; while the evidence shows that during the time science hall has been in process of construction, that is since October, 1885, Prof. Conover has conducted only one recitation a day, and that during but one term in each year. As to the manner in which the work has been pushed toward completion, there is some conflict in the evidence. Prof. Conover and Regents Keyes and Paul, declare that the work has been done as rapidly as possible under the circumstances, and that the failure to have science hall completed, ready for occupancy, by the month of April, 1887, as called for by the original specifications, is not attributable to those in charge of its construction. Mr. Paul, however, was not in a position to know accurately, of his own knowledge, as to how the work was being carried on, as appears by his testimony (page 406).

(Examined by Regent Keyes).

Q. You have stated you was president of the board, Mr. Paul. You have been familiar with the progress of the work up there, have you, from its first commencement?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. Since the destruction of science hall by fire?

A. Yes, sir.

Page 414 (examined by the committee.)

A. I am not—if you will excuse me—I never was on the work very much, when it was being prosecuted. Scarcely at all.

Q. How many times were you there?

A. Scarcely at all; and I can't say more than once or twice, probably, that I was on that work when it was being prosecuted. My evidence is of another kind entirely, on that subject.

The testimony of Mr. Keyes is very full on this point, and is to the general effect that he visited the work very frequently; that he often went to Milwaukee to consult with Mr. Paul and others concerning it; that he gave his time freely to it, and that to his knowledge the work was done as rapidly as possible.

The testimony of Senator Widule, of the present legislature (page 228) is to the contrary purport, and is as follows:

I was a delegate to the republican state convention last r; visited the grounds of the state university at that time; looked over science hall, then in process of construction. I stayed a couple of days after the convention; a friend of mine and myself, spent a few days visiting the university and at the same time viewing the construction of the new buildings. * * * I walked into the interior of the building; there were numerous men working there, scattered at different points, and the general impression there was that the work was carried on in an unbusiness-like manner. These men working, walked around slowly, apparently killing time. That is the impression that was made upon me. I saw a man coming down there, a hod-carrier or one of the hand-laborers, and I put the question to him: "Who is running this business?" Just the words I used. And he said: "Prof. Conover is superintending the construction; he is the superintendent and architect, but he isn't in town." * * * I put that question to the man, who was running the business. That is what he told me. And of course it made the general impression that the men were not earning their wages. * * * I don't know what they were getting, but they were working in a very unsystematic manner. That is all I know about it. Of course that is the impression that was formed from that observation there.

Q. Did you see anybody there acting as superintendent? Any one acting as boss?

A. I saw nobody acting as boss; the men were working there at their own—

Q. Pleasure?

A. I could see no foreman or anything.

Q. How long did you remain in there, about?

A. I must have remained there about three-quarters of an hour, walking through.

The testimony of Hon. Simeon Mills, of Madison, a man who has had great experience in the construction of buildings, public and private, is as follows:

Q. Did you visit the new science hall building as it has been built during the last year or two?

A. I was up there frequently last summer, and the summer before—fall before.

Q. While the workmen were employed upon it?

A. Yes, sir.

Q. What was the impression which you received there, as to the way the work was being done, from what you saw?

A. My impression was that the work was not done to good advantage. * * * So far as I could judge of the way the men were working when I saw them, I don't think they accomplished more than half, or less than that, of what that number of men ought to do.

Q. Do you know whether Prof. Conover has superintended the erection of any building of any importance here until he superintended the building of the court house and science hall simultaneously?

A. Well, I understood he had the superintending of the court house. I saw him there very often.

Q. Any other buildings besides those two?

A. None to my knowledge.

* * * * *

Q. In your experience as a builder, and acquaintance with the conduct of work on buildings, how did the way the work was done there, compare with the work that ought to be done upon a building where there was that number of men employed, as to the manner in which they did the work?

A. The men never seemed to be half working, most of them: some of them perhaps, were working well enough.

Q. I want to know what you meant by the expression "half-working."

A. Not accomplishing more than half what men ought to do. I will state a case. I was up there one time when they were moving in one of the iron columns. My impression is that they run up through one of the stories. They were moving it into the building, to erect it. I was there the most of one afternoon. I was there as much as three or four hours; four hours, I should think; around there and down at the engine house and in the machine shop; and in all that time, I don't think the men to work at it, moved it over three feet; and I thought there was time enough, if they had worked well, to have got the iron column into its place into the building.

Q. How many men were working at it?

A. Well, I couldn't tell exactly, but I should say six or eight, perhaps ten. I don't know exactly how many. I didn't count them.

Q. Moved it how far in an afternoon?

A. I don't think they moved it three feet that afternoon I was there.

Q. How big was the column?

A. Well, it was a pretty big one. I couldn't give the dimensions of it.

Q. Were ten men sufficient to move that with facility and ease?

A. I think if they had been properly managed, a less number of men ought to have moved it right along, if they had had proper ropes and blocks.

All the employes on science hall were hired by the day, except the superintendent, the assistant superintendent, the timekeeper and the man who had charge of the erection of the iron work. The common brick-layers were paid $2.50 a day for a while, but the most of the time they received $3 a day, and some of them $3.50. The pressed brick-layers received $4.50 a day during the greater part of the season. The foreman of the pressed brick-layers received $5.00 a day. Early in the season, for a month or six weeks, the pressed brick-layers received $5 a day, and the foreman of the pressed brick-layers $5.50 a day.

During the progress of the work, changes were constantly being made from the original plans and specifications, in the external and internal features of the building, in order, as testified to by witnesses, to make the building more fire-proof than was called for by the original plans. No detailed statements of these changes or estimates of the probable increase or diminution in cost, which they would entail, nor of the dimensions of the changes, were reduced to writing and preserved, nor was any record in writing kept of the increase or diminution in quantity and cost of material which these changes necessitated. These matters were simply suggested from time to time, discussed generally, and sometimes "figured on" by Prof. Conover and the building committee, and then adopted. In this manner the work progressed until in the month of September, 1886, at a special meeting of the board of regents, it was announced that all available funds for the construction of the building were practically exhausted; and thereupon a resolution was introduced to authorize the board of regents to borrow $30,000 to roof and enclose science hall. This resolution met with earnest opposition by a regent who is a leading member of the bar of the state, but was adopted. In accordance with it, the executive committee borrowed $30,000 ($15,000 October 13th, and $15,000 November 9th, 1886) on six months' time at six per cent., in order to get the structure under roof and enclosed. The testimony of chairman Keyes (page 258), on this point is:

Q. You borrowed this money to put the roof on?

A. And carry along the work.

Q. Was it with the idea of enclosing the building, that you borrowed the money?

A. That was the idea uppermost in our minds all the time during the season, was to get it under roof before winter came on. * * * * * We borrowed it on the faith and credit of the university and of the income of the university.

After the money was received, the work progressed until on Feb. 21st, 1887, the date of the introduction of the resolution under which your committee was appointed the condition of affairs was as follows: The appropriations were exhausted, the university was in debt $71,691.29, and science hall was without a roof, windows or doors. In the month of February last, the present legislature appropriated $20,000 additional, towards putting a roof upon science hall. The testimony of Prof. Conover is to the effect that a very large part of the material necessary to the construction of the roof, had been upon the ground for some time prior to the date of the last mentioned appropriation, and your committee is unable to account for the fact that the building, up to so late a date as April 9th, 1887, when it ceased to take testimony, was still without a roof. As to what was done with the $30,000 of borrowed money, the following is the testimony of the chairman of the building committee:

Q. Upon whose estimate was it that you borrowed $30,000 to enclose and protect science hall from the weather?

A. Well, mainly, I guess from facts within our own knowledge and from information derived from Prof. Conover. The board took the whole subject into consideration and acted from their own knowledge of the situation and the importance and necessity of having the building enclosed, and the hope and expectation we had that we would succeed in doing it.

Q. Did the $30,000 prove insufficient?

A. It did.

Q. How far along in the construction did the $30,000 carry the building?

A. I can't say, exactly.

Q. What was done with the $30,000?

A. Well, it was used in that direction.

Q. Did it carry the walls up to the top and leave it without a roof, when you borrowed it to put on the roof?

A. I can't state with particularity, just how much it cost. My attention was never called to it particularly, to figure it out.

It has been impossible for your committee to ascertain the amount which had been expended on science hall prior to the $20,000 appropriated. Mr. Marchand says the books show about $168,000, though he says they do not afford accurate information. Prof. Conover fixes the amount at $175,000.

This brings us to the problem in connection with this building which confronted and still confronts the present legislature. It can be stated no more concisely than by a quotation from the testimony of Mr. Keyes:

Q. Is there any way by which the university can complete that building, or the board of regents complete it, unless the legislature makes an appropriation?

A. I don't know that there is.

It is therefore plain to the minds of your committee, that the present legislature is practically compelled to make the large appropriation called for, to pay the indebtedness and complete the buildings, or else that the university itself must be seriously crippled; and it bases this opinion upon the following facts and provisions of law.

Section 382 of the revised statutes, provides as follows: The board of regents are authorized to expend such portion of the income of the university fund as they may deem expedient, for the erection of suitable buildings, and the purchase of apparatus, a library, cabinets and additions thereto, etc.

There is no other regular source of revenue to the university, from which it is lawful for the regents to take money for the erection of buildings; so that to ascertain their power in the premises, it is essential to understand the meaning of the expression "income of the university fund." Section 6, article 10, of the constitution supplies the definition for the term "university fund."

Section 6. * * * The proceeds of all lands that have been, or may hereafter be granted by the United States to the state, for the support of a university, shall be and remain a perpetual fund, to be called the "university fund," the interest of which shall be appropriated to the support of the state university, etc.; and section 248 of the revised statutes, defines precisely what is meant by the expression "income of the university fund," in the following language:

Section 248. All moneys paid into the treasury on account of the capital of the university fund shall be and remain a separate and perpetual fund, as required by the constitution; and the interest derived therefrom and from unpaid balances of purchase money on sales of university lands, shall constitute the "university fund income."

In addition to the foregoing, section 390, of the revised statutes, (as amended by chapter 300, 1883) appropriates to the university fund income, the one-eighth of one mill tax, which is levied and collected annually for each dollar of the assessed valuation of the taxable property of the state, and which last year amounted to a little more than $61,000. But if we give a much more liberal construction to the expression "income of the university fund" than is above set forth, it amounts annually, all told, to (approximately) only one hundred thousand dollars. But out of this income, there must be paid the salaries of the instructional force, which last year amounted to $58,741, and the necessary disbursements, which range from $30,000 to $40,000. In addition to this, the university is in debt more than $70,000, on $30,000 of which, it is paying interest at the rate of 6 per cent. Therefore, in the light of these facts it is demonstrated that if the university is to be kept up to its present standard as an educational institution, the legislature must make an appropriation to complete the buildings and pay the debt. When finished (and without furniture or apparatus) all of the buildings provided for by the act of 1885 will have cost $322,000; and their completion makes necessary the appropriation of the following sums, viz:

To pay the debt.....	$72,000 00
To finish science hall.....	53,000 00
To furnish steam heating, plumbing and gas-fitting for science hall.....	12,000 00
For plumbing and gas-fitting for the chemical laboratory.....	8,000 00

These sums are absolutely necessary to the completion of the buildings and the liquidation of the indebtedness.

The building committee (at least some of them) and Regent Paul give as their reason for making the changes they did in the construction of science hall, from the original plans and specifications and causing it to become so elaborate and expensive a building, that they were seeking to obey the requirements of section 1 of chapter 332, that

"All such buildings shall be built with a view to their being substantially fire-proof."

And they claim the law also required them to build "suitable" buildings, and that, therefore, they were authorized to go on and lay out buildings which in their opinion would meet those requirements.

When their attention has been called to the language of section 2 of the same act, to-wit:

For the purpose mentioned in the first section, there is hereby appropriated from the general fund, not exceeding the several sums respectively following, etc. They have turned it off with the statement that they understood that language to mean that $190,000 was all that that particular legislature desired to appropriate. The language of Chairman Keyes is, as above quoted, we expected that it was quite probable that the legislature of this state would make an additional appropriation. And the testimony of Mr. Paul shows that he too, believed as did Mr. Keyes. Mr. Paul's testimony, (page 400) is as follows:

Q. What did you understand by those words, "not exceeding the several sums?" What did you understand them to mean?

A. That it should be the full amount appropriated from the general fund, by the legislature of 1885, for the purposes specified in the act.

Q. So you did understand, then, that so far as the state moneys are concerned, that $190,000 was to be the full amount appropriated?

A. By that legislature. The act so states. If I understand the act, it means just what it states. No more, no less.

Q. (By Mr. Dyson.) Did you understand it that that was simply, as we would call it, a "starter?"

A. Well I don't know what you are trying to get at.

It would appear, however, to your committee that this attempt to so construe the law, is all the result of after-thought. The building, as originally planned, would have been "substantially fire-proof," says architect Koch, in his testimony (page 539).

Q. Didn't you understand when you drew the original plans, that you were drawing the plans for a building substantially fire-proof?

A. Well I believe that was the word used.

* * * * *

Q. Didn't you build (plan) that building with a view of making it what is called substantially fire-proof as that term is ordinarily used?

A. Yes, sir.

It is true that Mr. Koch elsewhere says that the building as now constructed is more fire-proof than would have been the one which he originally planned, and qualifies the above testimony somewhat, but the point is that he says the plans as originally drawn, called for a building "substantially fire-proof," as that term is ordinarily used. The floors were to be deafened by placing hollow brick between joists, and mortar on top of them, and strips on top of that, so that the floor lining itself was not connected with the joists except on strips; and those strips were laid on hollow brick and mortar. Says Architect Koch in his testimony, page 587:

Q. So that a floor might be burned off without the joists being touched?

A. Yes, sir, that was the intention.

Q. And the ceiling was protected with what you call fire-proofing?

A. Yes, sir; blocks of porous terra cotta.

Q. How was it at the sides?

A. They were lined up with brick; hollow walls outside.

Q. Would fire communicate against those walls as you originally made them inside?

A. No, sir; the walls were fire-proof as originally intended.

Here was a building in which the floors might be burned off without fire communicating to any other part of it; in which the sides of the rooms were absolutely fire-proof, and the ceilings covered with fire-proofing of terra cotta; a building which was wholly detached from others, wholly without stoves, lighted by gas, and which was to be heated by steam brought in pipes from a separate building which was in itself substantially fire-proof. It needs no argument to show that there is a difference between the words "substantially fire-proof" and "absolutely fire-proof," as they are commonly understood, and as beyond all question they were understood by the legislature of 1885, and as the evidence shows the regents themselves well understood. If the original plans and specifications did not call for a substantially fire-proof building, as demanded by the law, why did the committee advertise for bids for the construction of buildings in accordance with those plans and specifications? And why have they constructed the three smaller buildings so as to make them what Prof. Conover calls "slow-burning buildings." Have they violated the law in erecting those buildings, and only observed it in regard to science hall?

But the real reason why the building committee determined to erect the building and make these changes, is, in the opinion of your committee, found in the statement made by a member of the building committee to Mr. Simeon Mills, after the bids on science hall were rejected, when he told Mr. Mills, as appears from the testimony, that they had determined to erect the building by days' work, and that they were going to do it for from $15,000 to $20,000 less than the lowest bid. And conclusive evidence to show that these elaborate changes were not made because of any alleged commands contained in section 1 of the appropriation act, is that of Prof. Conover himself, who says that the changes in the construction of the building were suggested one at a time; that he suggested the change to the style of building it now is, and that the regents said they would "think of it." And that it was discussed for several months, from time to time, and that these changes were all made subsequent to the beginning of the buildings—at a date later than September, 1885; and that the first change was not made or settled upon until the January meeting of the board in 1886.

The following is what Mr. Paul says upon this point, as to the reason for these changes: (page 382.)

The law absolutely requires, authorizes and requires the regents to proceed to accomplish certain purposes, and makes certain appropriations for those purposes; and the board would have been negligent of its duty, especially in view of the fact that the university was left out, not to go on and do the best it could to comply with every provision of the law. * * *

Q. Did you suppose the legislature would hand over $200,000 or $300,000 without a question? Was there any amount you thought they would object to?

A. No, sir, and it is not my business to know, and I don't care, individually, as a person, at all. As a regent, I certainly think it is their duty to do certain things. * * *

Q. Then you considered it to have been within your authority to have laid out so expensive a building as that, and to make it the duty, as you call it, of the legislature, to expend $200,000 to complete it. Why hadn't you the right to lay it out so that the state would have to pay a million to build it? There is no limitation to the amount, is there?

A. If the board of regents is of the opinion that it ought to lay out a million dollars for the university, within the limits of the law, it has a perfect right to do it; and no man ought to question that right without changing the law. * * *

Q. Haven't you compelled the legislature to make the appropriation, to save the buildings?

A. No, sir; we have not, as I look at it. The legislature can exercise its discretion. We have exercised ours as we have a perfect right to do, in the law.

Q. Is there any discretion about this matter? They must either save the buildings or let them go, or have the university go down as a school? Now then if they want to keep the university up as a school and save the buildings, they must make an appropriation; isn't that the only discretion in the matter?

A. If the legislature wants to properly equip the university and preserve its usefulness, it is necessary to make the appropriation, unquestionably; but you ought not to hold the regents responsible for that.

Q. Did you intend to make this draft of $200,000 two years ago?

A. * * The board of regents never intends to ask the state anything. I do not wish you to understand the board of regents are here as beggars for state appropriations on any account. That is a matter within the discretion of the state entirely, whether it will take care of its University or not. We neither as a board of regents or as individuals, are responsible. We do not ask anything. It is you asking of yourselves that you make appropriations. It is you acting for the state and not for the board of regents. It is a misapprehension about that matter entirely.

Q. Didn't the legislature of 1885 act for the people when they appropriated not to exceed $190,000?

A. Yes, sir.

Extended comment upon the facts presented by the evidence filed herewith, is unnecessary. But your committee feel it to be a duty which they owe to the legislature, to the people and to themselves, to declare that in its opinion the manner in which the work upon science hall has been conducted, so far as the building committee is concerned, has been generally without system, careless and thoroughly unbusiness-like. It is not to be supposed that any member of the building committee, if he had expected himself to pay for the building of science hall, would for a moment have tolerated a young college graduate of three or four months' standing, and totally destitute of practical experience, to have exercised the authority which Mr. Parmen did, in the construction of that building. It is submitted that if any member of that building committee had expected that $200,000 or more of his private funds would be demanded to pay for the construction of science hall, he would not have employed Prof. Conover as superintendent of construction, with full authority to hire men, make contracts for material, sign all vouchers, and at the same time have permitted him to act as superintendent of construction of the Dane county court house, and during his absence, to leave science hall in charge of a man of the youth and inexperience of Mr. Parmen. Your committee believe that nothing of this kind would have happened in the case of any private individual, nor that it ever does happen except where the contents of a state treasury or some other public fund is looked to, to liquidate the bills. In view of the evidence, your committee feel it to be their duty to declare that in their opinion the people have a right to look for the same strict observance of business methods in the conduct of public enterprises, and especially in the matter of the expenditure of the public fund, that is demanded in affairs of mere private concern. It is easy to declare that the work was carefully superintended, and to present statistics of comparison based on the construction of government buildings, but in view of the testimony, your committee believe that the carelessness and negligence evinced by the building committee in superintending the construction of science hall, and their utter and manifest disregard of the legislative intent, as plainly set forth in the act of 1885, were nothing short of an imposition upon the tax-payers of the state. Nor can your committee look with any degree of tolerance upon the construction which some (not all) of the regents have sought to place upon the appropriation act of 1885. To hold, as did some of them, that section 1 of that act made it compulsory on the board to erect buildings as to them seemed best, and that section 2, which appropriates "not exceeding" $190,000 for those buildings applies only to the legislature of 1885, and that the regents had a right to look to some subsequent legislature to provide money to pay for such buildings as they might choose to erect, is, in the opinion of your committee, in plain disregard of the legislative intent, and a monstrous perversion of the spirit of the law. Therefore, your committee recommend:

First. That there be appropriated from the general fund the sum of $125,000 to complete science hall and to provide the necessary heating apparatus and plumbing for said building and for the other buildings mentioned in chapter 332 of the laws of 1885, and to liquidate the indebtedness thereon. And the further sums of $10,000 for furniture, and $40,000 for apparatus for science hall.

Second. That bill No. 137, A., be amended by inserting after section 1, of the printed bill, the following section:

Section 2. All contracts for material and labor in connection with the completion of the buildings for which an appropriation is made by this act, and all expenditures of money thereunder, shall be subject to the control and approval of the governor of the state, who is hereby authorized to appoint, or employ, a superintendent, and assistant superintendent, of construction, for the purpose of this act.

Third. That section 1 of bill No. 137, A., as printed, be amended so as to conform to the foregoing recommendation numbered first.

The official record of the testimony taken before your committee, is herewith presented.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

MADISON, Wis., April 11th, 1887.

Senator Thomas A. Dyson, Madison, Wis.:

DEAR SIR:—In response to your note of this morning, in which you do me the courtesy to ask my personal views as to the necessity of an appropriation of $60,000 for apparatus for the science hall buildings of the university, I have the honor to reply that I yesterday re-examined the estimates made by the professors in charge of the several departments, and have given the whole subject careful, and, I trust, candid consideration. I find the estimates throughout to be moderate. When a fair allowance has been made for the furnishing of the building, and the remainder is apportioned to the seven departments, to be equipped, viz.: mechanical engineering, civil engineering, natural philosophy, geology, metallurgy, chemistry and zoology, the proposed amount, which, as a round sum, naturally seems large, appears to be as low an estimate as is consistent with the best educational work. Taken in connection with what has already been granted the sum is sufficient, in my judgment to place the several departments on an excellent working basis, but no more than that.

With the great development of the sciences in recent years there has come a corresponding increase in the requirements for properly teaching them, and with the improved methods of teaching them, that have come with this increased knowledge, these requisite appliances have become the more imperative. For this reason it will be impracticable to secure those large educational returns that are anticipated as the justification of the large outlay for buildings, unless adequate working facilities are provided; for the utilization of the whole is largely dependent on these. It would in my judgment, be wiser to leave some portion of the building unfinished than to cut down the working plant below the stage of efficiency. Besides this, there is an administrative aspect of the subject that cannot wisely be overlooked. With salaries in many of the institutions with which the university of Wisconsin is entitled to be ranked, ranging from twenty-five per cent. to two hundred and fifty per cent. higher than are here given, unless facilities for good work and a high degree of professional success are afforded there is danger that our best talent will respond to more remunerative calls. This, I am sorry to say, is not a mere presumption, but a pending probability. It is not without solicitude, therefore, that I earnestly urge, that the full amount provided in the bill be retained.

Very Respectfully Yours,

T. C. CHAMBERLIN.

On motion of Senator Nason,
No. 357, A.,
A bill creating a municipal court for Douglas county.
Was laid over until April 13.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION.

STATE OF WISCONSIN,

Executive Department,

MADISON, April 12, 1887.

To the Honorable, the Senate :

I return herewith, without approval, bill No. 242, S., entitled, "an act relating to the swamp lands within the counties of Oconto, Forest, Marinette and Florence."

This bill in terms grants to the above named counties, within certain described limits, all of the swamp lands now held in trust by the state, with power to each of said counties to dispose of said lands to any railroad corporation for certain purposes.

While the bill provides that the land is to be conveyed to the counties, and by the counties to the railroads for drainage purposes, no definite provision is made to ascertain whether or not the railway ever uses the land for the purposes mentioned in the act, but the land is to be given absolutely to the railroad company, upon building and operating the railroad within certain limits, without regard to whether any of the proceeds of the swamp lands, are ever used for drainage purposes.

Included within the limits of the above named counties are upwards of twenty-seven thousand acres of what are known as indemnity lands. These lands were conveyed to the state pursuant to various acts of congress for specific purposes. They do not belong to the counties for drainage purposes, but were conveyed to the state in lieu of other lands, and are held in trust for the purposes for which they were granted.

By the terms of this bill these lands are given absolutely to the counties for the purposes mentioned. To dispose of them, as this bill seeks to do, for a purpose never contemplated by congress in making this grant, would, in my judgment, be a gross violation of public duty on the part of the state, which cannot meet my approval.

This bill was submitted to the commissioners of the public lands, who unanimously concur in the opinion that it ought not to become a law.

J. M. RUSK,
Governor.

The question being: "Shall the bill pass notwithstanding the objections of his excellency, the governor,"

The ayes and noes being required, it was decided in the negative; ayes, 1; noes, 26; not voting, 6.

The vote was follows:

BIENNIAL REPORT
OF THE LIBRARIAN
OF THE
Wisconsin State Library,
FOR THE YEARS 1885-6.

MADISON, WIS.:
DEMOCRAT CO., STATE PRINTERS.
1887.

APPENDIX.

STATE OF WISCONSIN,

Library Department,

MADISON, February 9, 1887.

To the Hon. GEO. W. RYLAND,

President of the Senate:

SIR: — I have the honor to transmit herewith to the legislature of Wisconsin my biennial report as required by law.

Very Respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

JOHN R. BERRYMAN,

State Librarian.

REPORT.

To the Honorable, the Legislature of Wisconsin :

This report concerning the condition of the state library, with alphabetical lists of the books added thereto during the years 1885 and 1886, is hereby submitted, as required by law:

At the close of the year 1884 the number of volumes in the library was	17,918
There were added by purchase in 1885.....	518
There were added by purchase in 1886.....	526
There were added by exchange and donation in 1885.....	520
There were added by exchange and donation in 1886.....	525
Total additions in 1885-6	2,089
Number of volumes in the library, December 31, 1886.....	20,002

The additions made during the period covered by this report include nearly all the important contemporaneous legal publications which have appeared in the English language, as well as a considerable number of volumes of an earlier period. These latter are mainly composed of statutes and session laws of various states and countries, law journals and early editions of treatises on common law subjects. In the main the library has been able to respond to all demands made upon it. A few inquiries have been made for decisions of the courts of some of the colonies of Great Britain which it could not meet, and also for laws of other states. There is an increasing demand for this last class of books. As the state grows in population and wealth its citizens become more largely interested in business in other states and territories and have occasion to consult their laws with greater frequency. This is especially true of those who make investments in the stocks of foreign corporations or who have business transactions with them. They are likewise important when citizens of this state are interested in the settlement of estates left by residents of other jurisdictions, as well as in many other cases of frequent recurrence. With few exceptions, the library contains complete sets of the general laws enacted, and revised and compiled statutes published, since 1848. It lacks many of the general laws prior to that date and of the special or private and local laws subsequent. These are difficult to obtain, and frequent applications to the state and territorial authorities have secured all which it may reasonably be expected can be got by exchange.

The purchases of books of this class which have been made from time to time as funds could be spared therefor without depriving the library of current literature, have mainly been confined to the more recent ones which were needed, and hence those which are least expensive. The present appropriation is hardly more than sufficient to pay for the current publications. In order, therefore, to do anything toward perfecting this important part of the library additional funds should be placed at the disposal of the trustees. Prompt action in this direction will be in the interest of economy, as the demand for books of this class is constantly increasing by reason of the fact that many of the state and bar libraries are earnestly endeavoring to complete their sets thereof.

The number who use the library is constantly increasing. This adds to the labor of those in charge of it. Besides the additional work thereby caused, much voluntary labor has been performed with a view of increasing the facilities for ascertaining the resources of the library upon any given subject and otherwise facilitating research. With this object in view, the printed catalogue of the library, published in 1881, has been kept up by making manuscript entries of books as they have been received; the printed table of Wisconsin cases cited in the opinions of the supreme court has been continued so as to embrace the last volume of reports; the cases and briefs used before the court have been bound and indexed. In addition, the cases in the English courts from 1865 to 1885, inclusive, which limit, modify, distinguish, overrule or approve previous cases therein, or in other courts, have been noted on the margin of the page containing the cited case and a reference made to the cases which cite it. This work occupied nearly three months. A still more important work has been completed—an index to the leading articles and principal annotations contained in the American, English, Irish, Scotch and Canadian law journals from 1882 to date. This index has been made on cards and is placed in a case ready for use. It begins where the excellent subject-index law catalogue of the New York State library ends. The two combined make available for almost instant use the leading articles in several hundred volumes of law journals which previously have been almost inaccessible. The work done for this library is broader in its scope than that done for the New York State Library by Dr. Griswold in the catalogue referred to, in this, that it embraces the principal annotations appended to cases in the legal periodicals as well as the articles. This subject-card index is kept up from week to week. It has already been used enough to demonstrate its utility, and when the bar are generally aware that it has been made, a more extended use of it may be expected.

Without the assistance of a faithful and competent man the librarian would have been unable to do much more than to wait upon those who call for aid, attend to the correspondence which grows out of the purchase and exchange of books and the inquiries which come to him on a large variety of matters; and to look after the other numerous details involved in the arrangement and preservation of twenty thousand books. Much that has been done in the two years past to facilitate research in the library has been done by a gentleman whose services are illy compensated for at nine hundred dollars per year and whose value to the library and to the state is not indicated by the messengership he holds; and what he has not done in the directions indicated the librarian has been enabled to do by reason of his services in other directions.

A list of books purchased during the years 1885 and 1886 is annexed hereto and marked Appendix A. The list of those received by exchange and donation during the same period is marked Appendix B.

A few books have been received by exchange which do not appear in the proper list for the reason that they had been purchased before they reached the library. In such cases they have been sold to the book-dealers and the library has been credited with their value.

JOHN R. BERRYMAN,
State Librarian.
